20 OWNERS OF PROPERTY GET TAX HEARINGS

Face Possibility of Being Assessed for Liquor Selling Tenants

STATE OFFICER HERE

Prohibition Department Agent Holds Hearings for Those Notified

Twenty Marion county property owners faced the possibility of having the Dow-Aiken liquor tax assessed against them today as a result of the operation of tenants on liquor charges.

W. H. Kline, a representative of the prohibition department, was in Marion today to hold hearings in the cases. According to Kline the property owner as well as the person convicted is held liable for the Dow-Aiken tax. Owners and the agents involved in five cases had appeared before Kline before 2 o'clock this afternoon to attempt to show why the tax should not be assessed against them. The hearings were continued until all cases have been heard.

The Dow-Aiken liquor tax is the tax usually assessed against houses involved in the liquor traffic when violations were licensed.

Seven Year List

The cases being heard here today are confined to the county auditor's records covering from Feb. 7 1922 to Jan. 15, 1929.

When a prohibition law violator is convicted the state prohibition department notifies the conviction to the auditor of state. The state auditor then places the Dow-Aiken tax against the property in which the violation occurred operated and certifies it to the county auditor. The tax is then placed on the tax duplicate against the name of the property. Property owners were called in today to show why they should not be forced to pay the tax.

In cases where the property owner can show that he was not aware that tenants were violating the prohibition laws the tax is generally remitted.

Appear This Morning

Those appearing before Kline this morning were George Ackerman, owner of the Ackerman hotel, occupied by Marion Cox who has been convicted of prohibition law violation, officials of the Union Realty Co., owners of property occupied by Sam Farruggio, Merle Wait, of Caledonia, owner of the property occupied by Jesse Brown at the time of his conviction, Otis Kohlberger, owner of the property occupied by Ed Miller at the time of his conviction.

Hearings on 15 other cases were being continued this afternoon.

In cases in which Kline holds the tax should be assessed against the property owners, Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Donathen will be instructed to start action to collect the tax.

"The Secret Trail"

A MYSTERY STORY OF SCOTLAND YARD

By Anthony Armstrong

JIMMIE REZAIRE sat on a seat in St. James' Park, London, and expanded his lungs to their full extent, drawing in gulps of the cool October air. Small and well-made with a sharp-featured face and restless bright eyes, he seemed to relax himself with the abandon of a man who has just thrown off a heavy burden.

And undoubtedly he had. For he was free at last. That very morning he had been released from prison after serving his sentence—reduced to some extent for exemplary behavior, and for a little matter of helping a warder. Once behind the bars, Jimmie had not indulged in any vindictive foolishness or wild attempts at escape: his one idea had been to get out again as quickly as possible by legitimate methods. Once out, he was more than half determined to pit his brains once again against those of the police force; for the name of Jimmie Rezaire was well known in the upper strata of the underworld, and was even mentioned with admiration since the "job" for which he had done time. Jimmie laughed derisively as he recalled the prison governor's parting words about running straight and using his undoubted brains for the community instead of against it. And even the governor had laughed when, on expressing a hope that they would not meet again, Jimmy had countered that their first introduction had been forced on him against his wish.

He recalled with almost a feeling of pride how nearly, after all, he had escaped capture—that midnight chase across London, the fight with the police in the dar, the dash in the stolen car through Hampshire, those breathless final moments at Beaulieu. At the last, safety had been in his fingers and he had let it slip because with it went an encounter with his revengeful partner, Long Sam, whom some hours earlier he had attempted unsuccessfully to betray. Sam had escaped that night, doubtless breathing vindictive hatred—but Jimmie himself had been taken. Thank God

BOK DIES OF HEART MALADY

Editor, Peace Prize, Creator and Builder of Florida Singing Tower Taken

LAKE WALES, Fla., Jan. 9—The beautiful singing tower, known as one of the three distinctively American works of architectural art, will be the lasting monument for Edward William Bok, 67, who died at his winter retreat here early today from an acute heart attack.

The body of its builder, known as a lover of beauty as well as a great editor and a great philanthropist, will be laid at the foot of the carillon-tower here in a specially prepared burial crypt that has been there since the huge structure was finished.

All that is mortal of the Philadelphian will be interred there following brief and simple funeral services at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Stricken on Sunday

Bok was stricken with a heart malady Sunday, but his condition did not become critical until yesterday.

As a result his death found sons and other relatives enroute to Lake Wales in an attempt to reach his bedside before he died.

The author's wife was at his bedside when the end came. She came with him to Lake Wales a short while ago for the winter season.

Death occurred at 4:25 a. m.

The widow and two sons, W. Curtis Bok and Cary Bok, survive.

Bok was for many years editor of the Ladies' Home Journal. In 1928

VICTORY IS WON BY SENATE INSURGENTS

La Follette and Thomas Placed on Powerful Senate Finance Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—The civil war, which threatened to disrupt the Republican party in the senate, was averted today by the action of administration leaders in giving the insurgents a "balance of power" on the powerful senate finance committee.

The insurgents were happily back in the Republican fold for organization purposes only, thus insuring a Republican "paper" control of the senate. Their pacification was won by granting Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., of Wisconsin, and Senator John Thomas of Idaho, posts on the finance committee. The two independents, along with Senator Couzens of Michigan, by joining with the Democrats, can dominate the writing of all tariff, tax and revenue legislation for the next two years.

Administration leaders dismissed the insurgent victory as trivial. They pointed out that the senate itself has the final word on all legislation and cited the tariff bill as illustrating how the committee was powerless to bind the senate. The tariff bill has been almost rewritten from cover to cover by the senate, in spite of all committee recommendations.

The administration leaders looked upon the peace treaty as a distinct political advantage to the Republican party. By pacifying the insurgents, they argued, the party will continue to present a united front against the Democrats in all the congressional campaigns next fall.

Anti-Prohibition Group To Hold National Meet

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9 — The Crusaders, anti-prohibition organization that has showed remarkable growth and strength recently, will hold its first national meeting of the executive board in Cleveland Jan. 18, Fred G. Clark, president, announced today.

The meeting, Clark said, will be held to formulate plans for a nation-wide expansion of the organization. The Crusaders was originally formed in Cleveland for the express purpose of fighting the present prohibition evils and substitute some practical method of liquor distribution.

Arrest 60 Communists Parading Before Office

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Sixty communists were arrested today when police reserves charged a mob of about 150 men and women who were parading and singing noisily before a shoe company office.

One patrolman, Thomas Julia, had his face lacerated by a group of furious women who surrounded him, striking and clawing in the near riot.

Prohibition Comes First

$400,000 Telephone Bill
Young La Follette Wins

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

DEBATES in the house and senate indicate that prohibition is less in favor and more the principal issue in United States politics and public opinion.

The house and senate, calm about other things, become wildly excited when a glass of whisky or the shooting of a bootlegger is mentioned.

Many believe sincerely that drinking whisky is the most important issue in the affairs of the United States.

Others think that great engineering, the development of natural resources, and prosperity are important.

That fact, for reasons known to Providence, seems to be on the side that defy prohibition.

Yesterday passed a law compelling the makers of liquor to tell who sold it. Yesterday the Supreme Court says the "padlock law" is unconstitutional. Hundreds had been sent to jail violating the law.

Prohibition would be made 10 times more effective if the law held the buyer of liquor as guilty as the seller is guilty. But high court decisions say it is a crime to sell liquor, but not to buy it.

There is a difference between the buyer defying law and constitution. Nevertheless, the buyer makes money, and should put them in the same class.

A wedding (5 p. m. yesterday) in royal marriage in Rome was historic. The happy young couple had been blessed, and married. Journalists, whatever their plans had been, had been disappointed. Probable, if any of them saw the bride, a youth and a girl that hurt anybody, they are glad of it.

Three kings saw the wedding, and the palace of Rome, always romantic, enjoyed it intensely.

What Mussolini thought will make most interesting chapter.

Perhaps the next century there will be no kings, perhaps.

But there will be other Mussolinis. People must have leaders, born or made.

THE United States army of simpletons that buy stocks when gentlemen ring the doorbell and tell them "now or never," or when other gentlemen call them on the telephone, are interested in this:

One get-rich-quick concern on trial in a federal court is said to have spent $400,000 in one year for telephone messages to fools.

You may imagine how much the geese at the other end of the telephone must have lost to justify a $400,000 telephone bill in one year.

How prosperous this nation would be if citizens could be persuaded not to invest unless they know, or have the advice of some honest and experienced man, preferably a respected banker who has been in business for some time!

There is always one investment that does not disappoint you—the savings bank. It does not call you up on the telephone, but it does return your money when you want it.

YOUNG SENATOR LA FOLLETTE gets his seat on the senate finance committee. Conservative senators, representing organized money and corporations, that are the real government of the United States, didn't want him, but let him in to avoid a troublesome fight.

His admission was reasonable.

Young La Follette does not represent the really big powers in the United States. But his ideas, and, especially, his archaic notion that the people of the United States ought to govern the United States, are shared by at least 90,000,000 out of 120,000,000 Americans.

The 90,000,000 haven't learned to use the ballot yet, but may learn some day.

FLOOD WATER FROM RIVERS COVERS ROADS

Traffic Throughout This Section Impeded; Bridges Threatened

WARNINGS ISSUED

Notice of Danger on Roads West of Marion Comes from County Surveyor

Swollen streams and continued rain today had flooded Marion county roads and impeded traffic in all sections of the county and district.

The southern section of the county is hardest hit, according to Cecil B. Leavens, county surveyor, who today was checking up on conditions.

All roads between Prospect and LaRue are under water in many places and in some places swollen streams are threatening bridges. Warning that travel on these roads is dangerous was issued today by the county surveyor.

Still nearer Marion is the Agosta rd., over which water was standing in many places today, according to Leavens. Motorists have been warned not to attempt to reach LaRue or Agosta by means of this route, but to go north on Harding Highway and then south to these points.

Roads and Fields Covered

Both Big and Little Scioto rivers have inundated roads and fields on either sides of their overrun banks. South of LaRue, the Scioto is not so rampant.

Reports that the Whetstone river is receding reached Marion today. Conditions along its banks are not dangerous.

A number of state and county highways today were gradually being added to the list of flooded and impassable roads, as the local rainfall since Tuesday night passed the 2.58 inches mark today.

This section of the state today was hinging its hope of relief from menacing conditions on a cold wave, which, long overdue, may turn a two-day siege of rainfall to snow some time Friday. Relief from this quarter was not in sight today, however, as the official weather forecaster predicted rain or sleet tonight and Friday, probably changing to snow Friday.

The child was the second victim of automobile accidents to die in Columbus, last night, according to police reports. Hugh B. U. S. DELEGATES OFF FOR MEET

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 — The American delegates to the London naval conference sail for England today on an historic mission.

They hope to return in the spring or early summer with an agreement between the five great naval powers which will not only stop competitive building in all classes of warships, but provide as well for actual reduction of tonnage now afloat. That is the hope—but between the hope and the realization lie many weeks of hard, grubbing work, and perhaps some spirited if not acrimonious negotiation.

The delegation sails on the S. S. George Washington, a vessel that has played a conspicuous part in American post-war diplomacy. It was the George Washington upon which Woodrow Wilson set sail so confidently for the Versailles conference 10 years ago. It was the same vessel which he hurriedly called to France at a critical juncture in that conference when events were going badly and he had threatened to quit it.

See Many Difficulties

It was impossible for the war-time president to foresee what was ahead of him at Versailles, and similarly, the departing arms conference delegates today were making no predictions of what will eventuate in London. They have high hopes of success, and are prepared to labor long and earnestly for it. But they are also impressed with the manifold difficulties of the task that lies ahead of them.

Their departure today marks the fruition of many months of diligent preparation and exchange of views—preliminary planning that even went so far as to impel a British prime minister to shatter the precedent of all

Widespread Activities of One or More Theft Rings Revealed in Survey; Indicates No Section of County Escaped Raiders in Last Year

OFFICIALS MAINTAIN POLICY OF SILENCE

Losses at Various Farms Range from 20 to 200 Fowls; Nearly Every Farmer Near Marion in List of Victims; Some Places Visited Often

With the arrest of two suspected chicken thieves in Springfield several days ago the widespread activities of one or more rings which have operated in Marion county are being brought to light. The two men arrested in Springfield have admitted stealing chickens from two Marion county farmers, according to local officers. They are not thought to have been alone in the widespread raids on Marion county poultry flocks, however.

Plunder of the land or bands of chicken thieves in Marion county within the last year is estimated to reach into the thousands of dollars. Hardly a farmer within a short radius of Marion has escaped the raids of the thieves.

Survey Reveals Facts

In a survey made yesterday afternoon a representative of The Star visited a number of farm homes within a two mile radius of Marion. Fifteen persons reported that they had had chickens stolen at dates ranging from a year to a few weeks. Only one farmer visited stated that none of his chickens had been stolen recently.

The number of chickens stolen from the various farmers ranged from 20 to 200. In some cases the thieves make return trips at intervals of several weeks. In one case they virtually cleaned out a flock of more than 200 fowls.

The cases discovered by The Star representative yesterday are perhaps only a small percentage of the actual number. The survey covered only a small territory south and east of the city. In this territory at least 750 chickens have been stolen within the last year. The total number stolen in the entire county is perhaps many times that number. The survey did not cover the territory in the vicinity of Prospect, where thieves are reported to have been active recently. Nor did it cover sections north and west of the city.

Maintained Silence

For a year Marion county farmers have borne the depredations of the thieves patiently. On the advice of officials they have remained silent about their losses. The farmers' patience, however, is being worn ragged as thieves continue to visit their poultry houses time after time.

Since silence has failed to relieve the situation, farmers are now thinking of adopting more drastic action. In some quarters there are whispers of organizing farmer posses to take charge of the situation.

Future developments may be that grangers and other farm organizations will unite to combat the thieves. Some believe that this is the best solution to the situation. An organized farmer posse would prove a great hazard to the operations of chicken thieves and would place a thief, when caught, in a position not to be envied.

Chicken thieves, considered by many, especially farmers, to be on the lowest rung of the criminal ladder, are no respecters of persons. The survey shows that they have stolen from widows and from persons on their deathbeds. And in the majority of cases their victims are women, for

Criswold Says 5,000 Mentally Deficient Persons Wander Streets of Ohio

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9—While the mysterious hook-nosed "mad slasher" who has been preying upon Cleveland women and girls for the past month, continued to elude police today, direct blame for such criminal attacks was hurled at the door of state officials by State Welfare Director H. H. Griswold.

In an address here last night before the Cleveland Welfare association, Griswold vigorously condemned the laxity of state officials, charging that through their negligence thousands of insane and feeble-minded persons roam the streets because of lack of housing facilities.

Griswold claimed that more than 5,000 mentally deficient persons are wandering the streets because of overcrowded conditions in state institutions.

CITY SMALLPOX LIST DOWN TO 26 CASES

Reduced to Half the Number Under Quarantine Here at Peak Period

Smallpox invaded the West Side fire department, company No. 2, today when Charles Thompson, fireman, was found to have the disease. He was quarantined at his home on Reed av.

The sleeping quarters of the firemen were thoroughly fumigated this morning by C. M. Tobin, sanitary policeman, on request of W. E. Strayer, director of public safety. Added precautions against the spread of the disease at the station are being taken today.

In spite of four new cases of smallpox, including Thompson's, which were reported to the office of the city health department this morning, the number of cases in the city has been reduced to 26 according to health authorities. This is half the number of cases which were held in quarantine here for nearly a month when smallpox was at the peak of its activity here.

Newly cases reported today are: Marcellus Kelley, 741 East Church st.; Arch Dazen, 391 Chester st.; John Griswold, 795 North Main st.

With the smallpox situation comparatively under control Dr. Robert McMurray, who was called early in December as an assistant to Dr. W. H. Kelsey, city health commissioner, will be released from service today.

Charged with Laziness

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

That persistent feeling of tiredness—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system. Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal that saps our strength and vitality, taxes our nerves and pulls us down physically and mentally.

Magnesia Oxoids, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Bradley's Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for five days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full. A-I-S General —Adv.

"Of course," she said without warning. "that was a dreadful thing to do to Suzanne—to pretend to fall in love with her, and then make Tom send her away with you."

His jaw dropped. She knew—she knew everything!

"How did you find out?"

She was on the point of telling him when it occurred to her it is always well to begin with a reputation for prescience.

"It's so easy to see through you," she murmured. "Of course, I shall never tell Suzanne."

He looked at this goddess with respect. But he was not astonished at her wisdom. What made his heart thump so violently was that she seemed to have no anger left in her at all, she seemed strangely calm.

"Kathleen—you—you ran away from me this morning—left me out there on the island!"

"Yes, I knew Capt. Jones would bring you here tomorrow morning."

"But you'd have been gone."

She didn't answer. He looked at her, noticed her smile.

"Look at me," he said. She kept her face averted. "I love you!"

"Hush! You mustn't talk like that. People are looking at us. That fat woman heard you."

"I love you."

"Please be good, Bruce!"

"Then say you love me!"

"Of course, I do. You know that."

He murmured her name in a whisper that was bewildered and ecstatic. Suddenly he halted. "See here, you told me you were going to China!"

"Yes."

"Did you mean it?"

"It depends on you. Father is opening a branch there, and I thought with your experience you might like to go out for him."

"You—you meant you'd go to China with me?"

"Bruce, don't you realize we're walking on a public street. Stop! Where are you taking me?"

"Some place where I can kiss you!" he said.

Mr. Wagmore certainly thinks a lot of boys and girls and is always trying to do things for them. I am going to be like him when I grow up. So when we saw it was good skating we dropped our slays and hiked out for our skates, and I met Miss Parmer in her velvet britches and double breasted coat and the tassels on her hat, and my uncle was with her and he held my skates, the dirty crook, so I went back. She sot down on his coat whilst he put her skates on, and then she stood out on the ice waiting for him whilst he put on mine, and mine were so short for him when he stood up and took a big smoke tourist he to show her what a good skater he is the point stuck in the ice and he went wham the whole length of his stummick. He got up with a kinda sickish grin and brushed himself and said, "I guess I can't skate with those things," and Miss Parmer smiled at him and said, "I love to see you try." But he took them off and I got them and skated around with Miss Parmer till dark. She is a good skater now.

What Price LAZY APPETITE

"Dear, are you not glad you followed my suggestion when I urged you to try S.S.S. for your lost appetite?"

HAVE you an indifference or loathing for food, or do you really enjoy mealtime?

Fads and fancies come and go. We must be reasonable. You can't afford to wreck your body by "killing" an appetite given you by Nature to nourish your body.

You must really enjoy your meals and assimilate them to restore the waste of the body. Don't expect a strong, sturdy body and a keen mind to carry on if you do not enjoy your food. It just can't be done. Friends, happiness and business success may depend on a keen appetite.

Many thousands have turned to S.S.S. when the appetite signaled danger. It is a time-tested remedy . . . purely vegetable. Easy to assimilate! Pleasant to take. It will do much to restore the natural appetite. It will not act instantly, but, be assured, when taken according to directions, it will usually bring back your desire to eat and enjoy your food. This you well know is the basic step for health. Simply reason it out for yourself and you will agree that it is the practical way.

And remember, S.S.S. will help you get your blood-cells back up to normal. Then that sluggish, let-down feeling and skin troubles will disappear. You should sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. At all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. S.S.S. Co.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently, but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

Love's Reawakening

The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Pease Reigns Instead of the Expected Battle

FROM beneath my eyelashes I watched my small son and his cousin as I told them that there were but two ways to settle their quarrel—to shake hands and be friends, or to go out into the orchard and fight it out.

Their first reaction was toward the idea of physical combat. I could see that, plainly from their suddenly heightened color and the glint in their eyes. They glanced furtively at each other, then quickly away again; and then, with quickened breath, I saw both pairs of eyes reared up to my face with an appealing "I will be good!" look that made my throat constrict and my arms ache with the impulse to hug each little figure tightly.

But I kept perfectly still, for I knew only too well the danger of disrupting that most delicate of mechanisms, a small boy's conscience, and soon had the reward of feeling Junior's arms flung tightly around my neck and of hearing him choke out:

"I don't want to fight Christmas time. I'll shake hands if Rod will."

I tightened my clasp of him, an embrace which I knew he would interpret as carrying my loving approval, but I turned my face to the motherless boy on the other side of me, and smiled at him, as my other arm tightened upon him.

"Well, dear?" I queried, and with a smothered little noise which was not quite a sob, but near it, Roderick put his arms around my neck and capitulated totally.

"I don't want to fight Christmas time, either," he uttered emphatically, "and I'll shake hands, eh, Jun?" he finished with a little swagger.

"Sure thing, Rod," Junior answered with an answering swagger, and they wriggled free from my arms scrambled to the door, and with heads thrown back and arms extended, went through the absurd little ceremony. Then they looked at each other, at the floor, and last at me with a significance that I could not understand at first. Then understanding broke upon me. They were having a perfect orgy of conscience and meant to clear up all their sins.

Squaring with Grandma

"Do you suppose Granzie is pretty mad at us?" Junior asked. "We wouldn't shake hands when she wanted us to."

"We couldn't then," Roderick explained. "Something inside me just tugged and wouldn't let me."

"Me, too," Junior assented, with a grave nod, and I had a sudden poignant vision of the many times to come when the "something inside" would "tug" and keep them from doing the thing they wished to do.

"But do you think she's mad?" my small son asked again anxiously.

"Not angry," I said, nonetheless that I was really spanking the truth, for Mother Graham could not remain angry for any length of time with any one of her grandchildren. "But I'm afraid she's hurt. She's an old lady, and she loves you both dearly, and you really were very rude to her."

The boys looked at each other uncomfortably. Then Roderick spoke.

"Can't we square it?" he asked, and I strangled a laugh behind a cough, he was so absurdly delicious with his big-boy attitude.

"Perhaps," I answered, noncommittally. I wanted to be able to assure my captious mother-in-law that I had had no part in this. She was perfectly capable of interpreting any apology from the boys as an attempt on my part to gloat over my success in getting the boys to shake hands when she had failed.

"What do you think we had better do, Mums?" Junior put the question straight to me.

"I think you'd better decide that yourselves," I said, and his eyes were round at this apparently base desertion of him.

"I suppose we'd better go and tell her we're shaken hands, and that we're sorry we were rude," Roderick made the suggestion, and Junior struck in with a hearty "That's the ticket." He turned to me anxiously. "May we go now, Mums?"

Away with the Message

I considered the request with inward trepidation. I did not believe Mother Graham was sufficiently over her anger to welcome them graciously. On the other hand, her anger might increase with brooding.

"Yes," I assented, after a second or two. "But I want you to remember something, because it is very important. If your grandmother asks you if I or anybody else told you to come, you must tell the truth, that you thought of it all yourselves. And when you first see her will you say, 'Granzie, we've been thinking over what you said, and we've made up our minds to shake hands the way you asked us to.' Can you remember that?"

They nodded gravely, and Junior asked: "Is that one of the 'important' things?"

"Yes," I answered and knew that I had given him a satisfying answer, for many times I have been compelled to rehearse him in some conciliatory message which he was to carry to his grandmother when she was in one of her tantrums.

"Then," Junior turned to Roderick importantly, "We'd better learn that by heart. Please say it over again, Mums."

I obeyed, and rehearsed them until they were letter perfect. Then I opened the door and sent them down the hall with instructions to return to me when they had finished their apology.

I closed the door after them, for I wished to have no appearance of collusion with them, and feeling elated and depressed in regular alternate waves of emotion, I waited for the return of the embassy.

Peaceful in the grave so low:

BENEFIT BALL NETS CITY HOSPITAL $822

Report of Dec. 27 Event Is Given at Woman's Board Meeting

A financial report of the benefit ball given by the Woman's Board of Marion City hospital made yesterday by Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer, general chairman, showed a net profit of $822.47, after the deduction of expenses of $303.92.

Receipts from the ball will be added to the fund now held in a bank account by the board, to be used at the hospital. The expenditure of the money for the hospital awaits proper action by city council and the new safety director, T. E. Sommastine.

The meeting yesterday was at the home of Mrs. E. H. Keller and Mrs. F. S. Keller, East Center st. Reports of chairman in charge of the ball were received, and a checkup on the ticket sale made.

A gratifying sale of tickets and the generous donations of Marion merchants, will insure a third annual ball, next year, according to reports this morning.

The board voted yesterday to extend an expression of appreciation to the Marion public and merchants for the cooperation shown in the annual ball. The ball this year was held Dec. 27 in Schwinger's hall, with Hogan Hancock and his recording orchestra furnishing the music.

Royal Newlyweds Review Italy's Fighting Strength

Couple Postpones Wedding Trip Until Saturday; Part of Honeymoon To Be Spent in San Possore, Near Pisa

ROME, Jan. 9—In lieu of an immediate honeymoon, Crown Prince Humbert and his bride of a day, the new Princess of Piedmont, today reviewed the elaborate display of Italy's fighting strength in company with their respective fathers, the sovereigns of Italy and Belgium, and other members of the two royal families.

Owing to the pressure of official functions at which they must be present, Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose will not start on their wedding trip until Saturday. It is expected they will spend part of their honeymoon in San Rossore, near Pisa, where a royal hunting lodge is located.

Taking up her official duties in her new role as wife of Italy's crown prince for the first time, the princess made a gracious picture of regal beauty as she sat in the reviewing stand at the former Parioli race track and acknowledged the salutes of 20,000 picked troops who tramped by before the rulers of two countries and their families.

Prince's Own Troops

Every branch of Italy's land forces, the Italian marine corps and Italian colonial troops was represented in the majestic military parade which swept by the stands.

Well up in the van of the formidable procession was the famous infantry regiment hailing from Turin and commanded by the crown prince himself. When the colorfully garbed mountaineers from the prince's native Piedmont passed the stands "at salute," Humbert showed his pride visibly and Marie smiled graciously while watching attentively as the prince enthusiastically explained the excellence of the soldiery of the troops.

Following the parade, the same 300 planes which flew over the quirinal while the couple was being wed in the Pauline chapel yesterday, performed again above the royal couple in intricate formations.

Reception Tonight

Following the military pageant, the two royal families returned to the quirinal which tonight was to be brilliantly lighted as part of the wedding celebration.

There was also to be a reception in honor of the newly-married couple at the city hall tonight with Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi, the governor of Rome, acting as host.

Tomorrow morning Prince Humbert and his bride will receive a procession of school children and in the afternoon they will review a similar procession of civil authorities from all over Italy. In the evening they will attend a gala performance at the opera.

After starting on the honeymoon trip Saturday, the couple will go to Turin some time next week to make their formal entry to the prince's city of residence.

EVANGELIST NAMES BASIS OF RELIGION

Sinner's Plea to God Discussed by Rev. W. N. La Mance at Epworth

"The basic belief of religion—there is a God," the Rev. W. N. LaMance, evangelist, declared in his sermon at Epworth M. E. church last night on "Will it be merciful to me a sinner," answering a cry of need. The Rev. Mr. LaMance drew a congregation of 700 last night in spite of inclement weather.

"The atheist, the deist, the fatalist, cannot offer this prayer. 'God be merciful to me a sinner,' the evangelist declared. 'This must come from the heart and life of a man who knows he is a sinner. When any man calls for mercy, God has an answer for him."

Friday night the Rev. Mr. LaMance will give a "Special sermon-lecture on "Ten Reasons Why Marriage Is A Failure." The choir, under the direction of Mrs. LaMance, opens the services every night.

GARGANTUAN ASPIRANT FOR FISTIC TITLE

CARNERA HOOKS HIS MAN WITH HIS 14 LB. CANE. CARNERA'S GARGANTUAN PEDAL EXTREMITIES CARNERA LIFTS HIS MAN

INTRODUCING the skyscraper of the ring—Primo Carnera, alias the Genoa Giant, who measures his punches by horsepower. Fistiana's newest sensation has come to town and has more than lived up to all the fabulous stories that Tunney and other visitors to Europe have told of him. The Italian boxer, who until two years ago was a circus performer with his enormous "hoofsies" wrapped in burlaps, is regarded by experts as exceptionally promising material. A far better prospect in fact, than was Jess Willard at the corresponding stage of his career.

Carnera is six feet 10 inches tall, weighs nearly 300 pounds, and carries a 14-pound cane to support his hefty frame. He wears size 17 shoes and encases his neck in a size 20 collar. When he was an itinerant circus performer his best meal consisted of seven pounds of bread, but now his breakfast includes such trifles as six eggs, 20 slices of toast two quart of milk, an enormous slice of ham, and maybe, a pint of orange juice. And after this modest repast he is ready for a limbering up at the gymnasium.

It is hoped late this month to stage Carnera a first bout in this country. Just now they are paging all the great fighters to find one to challenge conclusions with the Italian's 14-ounce boxing gloves, which measure 16½ inches, against the average 10½ "mitt." Up to now there has been no great rush of giant boxers to offer themselves as a sacrifice to Primo Carnera. George Godfrey, the human ton of coal, would be a logical opponent after the Italian has had some experience of American ring methods.

Carnera is having his workouts at Stillman's gymnasium and proving that he is not just another ring freak. He displays considerable agility and is remarkably limber. He does not rest heavily on his enormous "dogs" nor does he lumber around. He knows how to use his left and carefully pulls his punches against lighter opponents. At all events, he is a lifesaver just when the ring was devoid of colorful personalities and thrills.

SAINTS TO BE AFTER REVENGE WHEN THEY PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Hard Practices Concluded for Zanesville Battle in Star Auditorium

FIGHTING to avenge the shutout handed them several weeks ago, the St. Mary's cage squad will headline tonight's sport program in Star auditorium where it plays Zanesville.

The contest was changed from Jan. 10 to tonight in order to avoid a conflict with the Harding high school schedule.

It has been a hard week for the St. Mary's players. Coach Irvin has been sending them through the hardest of workouts and there has been a grim determination on the part of the players to reach the peak of their form for this one contest. That 21-to-0 victory scored by the Zanesville quint still is a burning memory.

From indications tonight's battle will be one of the hardest fought affairs of the season giving Referee Johnson no little trouble in keeping the game running smooth.

Other attractions on tonight's cage card are the Steam Shovel league frays. These contests will start at 6 o'clock and one game will be played every hour.

Flowers, Tut Complete Training for Battle

CHICAGO, Jan. 9—Their training finished, Bruce Flowers, New York colored sharpshooter, and King Tut, Minneapolis lightweight, marked time today for their bout here tomorrow night.

Tut, who defeated Billy Wallace by a knockout New Year's day, will enter the ring a 7 to 5 favorite, it was indicated today.

Flowers outweighs his opponent by several pounds and is several inches taller.

Welterweight champion Jackie Fields and Jimmy Owens are billed in the semi-windup bout, a non-championship match.

According to a government estimate land reclaimed by irrigation and otherwise in the United States in the last ten years has produced crops worth more than a billion dollars.

NOT THROUGH?

Jack Dempsey Tells Pans He May Try To Come Back

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 9—Jack Dempsey's assertion that while he is not ready to fight right now, he is not "through yet," was presented to the sports world today.

The former heavyweight champion received $2,500 for a minute and a half of work last night when he refereed the bout between Johnny Cook and Milton Mansoms which ended when Cook knocked out his opponent in the first round.

Dempsey made a speech from the ring in which he said he was not "through yet as you will see."

"LADIES' NIGHT" TO MARK WRESTLING ON CARD HERE MONDAY

Women To Be Admitted Free To See Grip and Sauer Battle in Main Go

WOMEN of Marion will have their inning next Monday when Bennie Criswell offers loyal fans his second wrestling program of the year.

Promoter Criswell, who was in Marion yesterday completing local arrangements for the card, announced that Monday night's bill will be "Ladies' Night."

In other words, all of them appearing in Webster's bigger and better guide to stammering, women of the city will be admitted to the general admission sections at the Steam Shovel gym without charge.

It is Criswell's idea to get the women interested in wrestling. The weaker sex attending the matches has been finding wrestling quite interesting. The number has been growing each week and Criswell is giving all of them a chance to see what it is about. So there it is. All women admitted free Monday night.

Featuring the bill will be George Sauer and Charley Grip in a no-time-limit-two-falls-to-win affair. The last time the pair appeared here they wrestled to a 30-minute draw. That last encounter offered plenty of action and next week's bill is expected to be even more exciting.

Two heavyweights will be lined up for the semi-final attraction.

Walsh Can't See Reason for Scott-Sharkey Tilt

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Reason has abdicated and blarney is enthroned. Fluctuating Philip Scott—fluctuating meaning up one minute and down the next—is signed to fight 15 rounds with Jack Sharkey at Miami next month and thus today is within a single match of a world's heavyweight championship shot.

Thus, too, we see a vest neatly and quickly made out of an arm hole. Regardless of what they do for and with him, Scott is the same sap fighter who left America last year without audible protest from at least one hundred million people. At home they call him faucet because he runs when somebody uses the tap—that is, the tap to the stomach—but here he is bowed into the semi-final of the heavyweight tournament on the strength of his muscle and we hasten to conclude the ceremony, lest he becomes irked at our boorish ways and thus change his mind.

Men have spent the better part of a life time trying to convince their way to a point where the heavyweight championship is within their reach. Scott arrived at this point yesterday by a few strokes of the pen and as the result of one of the most colossal parlays ever conceived in the mind of man.

It all began at this time last year, with the earth still warm over Rickard's grave and the need of putting over the Miami fight an imperative one. Jimmy Johnston, wishing to get some haircut money, strolled into the office of W. E. Carey and suggested Scott for a preliminary bout on the Miami card. Scott, at the time, was in England, a largely discredited fighter and pretty much disillusioned with Johnston and a world that was selfish and cold.

"Who's Scott?" said Mr. Carey, brightly. "I never heard of Scott."

Obviously there was nothing left for Johnston to say to this, so he said it, thus:

"The name is Phil Scott and I want you to remember it carefully, because some day he is going to cost you a million dollars."

Mr. Johnston is inclined to be that way about other people's money but he probably meant nothing very pertinent on this occasion, beyond a reprimand for what he had deemed to be levity at his expense.

In any case, he hit the air and took a generous gulp because it was free that day. So was Mr. Johnston and he walked very purposefully down the street, having first resisted an impulse to walk up the street.

He was opposite Fugazy's office when the great idea seized upon him and claimed him for its own. He thereupon entered without knocking, sold Fugazy the idea of inserting Scott's name in a joker contract the promoter held on Schmeling's services and the Garden was stuck for the first payment on the debt Johnston had conceived that it owed him.

The rest is history and all too recent, at that. The Schmeling-Sharkey match, worth more than a half million at the gate, was kicked out of New York, Schmeling was forced to leave the country and Scott, without so much as striking a blow, was a big man in the news. He didn't add to his prestige in the Campolo fight. But what of it? He lost nearly all he ever had by winning from Von Porat on a foul. Again, what of it? These questions are Mr. Johnston's, not mine. He asks them. I suspect, because he knows he is the only man who has the answer.

The second payment on the "debt" was arranged yesterday when Scott was signed to the Miami contract, calling for a percentage equal to Sharkey's, 25 percent, and the winner having William Muldoon's benediction as the most fitted to fight for the title. I doubt whether even Johnston thinks that Scott will be that man but, with the collection of a fee not greatly in arrears of $100,000, he will manage to bear up bravely in the face of any catastrophe that overtakes him in Florida.

This, for the time being, ends the story of a parlay of a pugilistic overdraft into a possible million. And the next episode? Who knows?

ART SHIRES BEFORE STATE COMMISSION

Must Explain Attempt Made To Fix Fight in Michigan

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 9—Charles Arthur "The Great" Shires has another victory to conquer before he vindicates himself before the eyes of the sporting world.

Having been exonerated of all charges by the Illinois Boxing commission, Shires now is scheduled to face the Michigan branch of that sport here today to answer charges that an attempt was made to fix his scheduled fight with Battling Criss in Detroit, Jan. 1.

Vaudes Gildersleeve, manager of Criss, has sworn to a statement that he was approached by Manager Benny Ray and John "Scotty" Strachan in his Hockwood home and told that Criss had to go in the tank for Shires.

Gildersleeve admits he never met Shires or his manager, but "the great man" was suspended by the Michigan commission, nevertheless.

Dave Knight, Detroit manager of boxers, also has been summoned to appear before the commission on the Shire-Criss business. Knight formerly managed Tiny Graves but says he didn't have anything to do with the Shires thing and can't understand why he has been called.

There is a Michigan law regarding the fixing or attempted fixing of baseball games, boxing bouts and other sports. It provides for a maximum fine of $5,000 or five years in jail or both.

James M. Brown, chairman of the commission, last night refused to say whether or not anybody would be prosecuted under the law. He stated the commission would make up its mind on the matter following today's hearing.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At New York — Ted Sandwina, Sioux City, won a 10-round decision over Pietro Corri, Austrian.

Andy Mitchell, California, won a 10-round decision over Herman Heller, Germany.

Eddie Roberts, Ridgewood, knocked out Frankie Lapera, New Rochelle, in the last round, (6).

At Newark—Vince Forgione, Philadelphia, won a 10-round decision over Billy Kohut, New York.

Vernie Galeno, Newark, dropped a four round decision to Eddie Bowling, Washington.

Reiselt and Layton in Tie for Tourney Lead

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Otto Reiselt and Johnny Layton, defending champion, today were tied for the lead in the world's three-cushion championship tournament, each having won five matches and lost one.

The deadlock is a result of Layton's victory last night over Allen Hall; 50 to 35, and Reiselt's defeat at the hands of Gus Copulos, 50 to 48. In winning, Copulos equaled the world's championship tournament high-run mark of 17.

In the two afternoon matches Augie Kieckhefer defeated Charles Jordan in a 72 inning match, 50 to 49, while Tiff Denton downed Harry Scholer, 50 to 25.

ARMY CAGERS WIN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 9—Army's basketball team was off to a flying start today, the Cadet five swamping the University of Delaware in the opening game here last night, 50 to 21.

Notable Array of Talent Assembled for Anniversary Program at WTAM

Radio Broadcast To Mark 60th Year of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio

ONE of the greatest arrays of operatic and theatrical stars ever assembled in an Ohio studio will furnish the entertainment for a two-hour radio program to be broadcast directly from WTAM, Cleveland, from 9 to 11 o'clock Friday night by the Standard Oil Company of Ohio in commemoration of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the company by John D. Rockefeller.

Phillips Carlin, popular R. C. A. announcer who has won fame over the air by his detail descriptions of fights, football games and other events, will act as master of ceremonies of the program.

Such opera stars as Richard Bonelli, baritone, and Alice Mock, soprano, both of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and Marlo Chamlee, tenor, and Merle Alcock, contralto, members of the famous New York Metropolitan Opera Company, will take part in the elaborate program to be presented, singing a number of the popular opera selections.

Gene and Glen, popular songsters, who formally teamed with Ford, forming a novelty trio, will be back on the air as a part of this monster program and their popular ditties will again be heard by radio fans.

Male Chorus on Program

A male chorus of 16 men under the direction of Charles Dawes, director of the Cleveland Orpheus Male choir, with Russell Wise, tenor, as soloist, has also been secured by the Standard Oil Company as a part of the series of entertainment features.

A 50-piece classical orchestra and a 23-piece jazz band is to furnish the music for the occasion and render a number of selections of classical and popular songs.

Negotiations are under way to bring a galaxy of other popular radio stars to Cleveland for this special broadcast.

The musical presentation will also bring before the microphone none other than Ruth Etting, Ziegfeld artist, America's most beautiful girl of 1927. She is the headliner of "Whoopee"—the girl who croons the blues.

Frank Crumit, the gay caballero of song and wit, a frequent vaudeville visitor to Cleveland and principal comedian in such shows as "Betty Be Good" and "Greenwich Village Follies," will smile himself into thousand of homes during the program. Roy Smeck, the boy who strings his uke with harp wire and in his particular line is compared with Elman and Talley, will be one of the outstanding stars of the broadcast.

HER TALENTS SEEM UNLIMITED

Pictured above is Helen Charleston, who has been "found" more times in the last year than ordinary young women are "found" in a lifetime.

First she was a vaudeville find, RKO booking her for her first tour less than a year ago. Next came the movie men and they also thought her a find. She had a very prominent part in the flicker, "Half Marriage." And now it's the radio. Given microphone tests for her radio debut in the RKO hour of the National Broadcasting Company, the experts said her voice was perfect. She first thought she wanted to be a dancer, but the various experts who "found" her have made her into a singer and actress.

PRIMA DONNA AND COMEDIAN ON BROWNBILT PROGRAM

LOUISE RICHARDSON, formerly prima donna of the American Opera Company, and Joe Santly, popular singing comedian, will be featured on the Brownbilt Footlite program at 8 o'clock over the Columbia network Friday night. Selections from Duncan Sisters' new picture, "It's a Great Life," will be featured.

WAR HERO TO TALK

General Jan Christian Smuts, Boer War hero visiting the United States on a mission of peace, will discuss Africa and the United States for the benefit of radio listeners at 1:45 o'clock Friday afternoon, over the WEAF network. He will speak from Hotel Astor, New York, as a feature of a meeting of the Foreign Policy association.

MARCH NUMBERS ON PROGRAM

MARCH numbers will be the order when the United States Navy Band presents a concert from Washington, D. C., through the Columbia network at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. The band, which numbers more than 75 members, will be under the direction of Lieut. Charles Benter.

MUSIC PUPILS TO BROADCAST

The Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, long a home of the best in music, will exhibit its wares to the nation when, at 10:30 o'clock Friday night a radio program emanating from the famous institution will go on the air over the Columbia network.

On the Streets of Marion

WITH STAR STAFF

Old Times Recalled

ACCORDING to one of Marion's amateur theater critics, the movie houses have gone the cycle. Twenty years ago, in the days of the nickelodeon, the managers advertised their wares and for additional ballyhoo, set up a phonograph in front of the theater to draw the crowds.

The big cities, even Marion, have come back to this, and today, one of the city's theaters has a phonograph in the lobby to tunefully lure the customers into the emporium.

Home Atmosphere

WHY not stay at home?

The other day a Ford coupe was seen rumbling down Center st., furnished with silk curtains, beige window shades, vases of flowers at the doors, and a small celluloid parrot in its cake dangling in the back window.

What pleasure could a tourist, much less one who lives in town, get out of riding around in a stuffy take-off on their own home furnishings?

There are a few motorists, though, who delight in embellishing their cars with curtains, sometimes in gay creations, sedate lace, or dusty looking cord curtain material.

If people like the idea of traveling in that style, why not have a lumber dealer build a little cottage effect to take the place of the regular body style?

Six Good Ones

THERE are musicians who have given their entire study of music over to classical compositions and would be horrified and much letdown at the question of whether or not they could play modern jazz.

Dalies Frantz, who played here last Tuesday in the school concert series, doesn't play jazz, but in his opinion there really is something to some of the foot-tingling numbers that are put on the market. In the last six months he has made a collection of the phonograph records of jazz music which he thinks are really worth while.

In six months he has collected six records. Discrimination is his byword, and at that speed, he's certainly cutting jazz to a streamline tune.

The question was broached after watching the perfect rhythm with which he played his program music. If the boy can play music of that type with such perfect timing, what a boon to a jazz orchestra he would be.

Statewide Problem

ALTHOUGH Marion county and city have seen the spread of smallpox grown to threatening proportions within the last few months these districts have not been alone in the dilemma.

During the last year there were 2,966 cases of smallpox in the state, according to bulletins issued by the state department of health. This is nearly one and a half times as many cases as were reported in 1928. Not since 1925 has there been a year with as great a number of cases as were reported in the state in 1929, the bulletin states.

Records in the state department show that there was a steady increase in the number of cases for the first five months of the year. Then came the months of June, July, August and September, when the number of cases declined. The 81 cases reported in September was the lowest for the year. November was high for the year with 526 cases.

Rosenwald, Chicago Philanthropist, Bride Egypt-Bound on Honeymoon

Multi-Millionaire Says "We Are Very, Very Happy" as Boat Sails

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Culminating a romance of the middle ages, Julius Rosenwald, 67-year-old Chicago philanthropist, and his 60-year-old bride, today were Egypt-bound on a honeymoon holiday.

The bride, the former Mrs. Adelaide Goodkind, is the mother-in-law of Lessing J. Rosenwald, son of the philanthropist. She is the widow of Benjamin Goodkind, merchant of St. Paul, Minn., who died 10 years ago. Rosenwald's first wife died last May.

Before sailing on the liner Saturnia the multi-millionaire bridegroom said: "We are very, very happy."

The silver-haired bride clung to the arm of her husband and nodded smilingly.

"We expect to be away about two months," said Rosenwald. "We will forget all about business."

The bride was dressed in a young-looking black traveling ensemble with a smart black hat to match. She wore a corsage of orchids.

The bridegroom wore a dapper gray overcoat and gray hat and sported a cane jauntily.

A family wedding dinner was held in New York previous to the sailing of the honeymooners.

Children of Couple by First Marriages Accompany Them

Before boarding the boat, the newlyweds posed merrily for the cameramen.

"I always did like newspapermen," volunteered the philanthropist, circling the progress. "They're good boys."

However, he dodged newsmen's evaded such emotional questions as whether he thought love was greater than money and as to his opinion on a formula for matrimonial bliss.

"All I can say is that we are extremely happy," he smiled.

The children of the philanthropist said that their father had been lonely since the death of their mother and that Mrs. Goodkind would make him an "ideal comrade."

Arranges to Hang Copy of Kellogg Peace Pact in Local Postoffice

Nick Bader and Miss Virginia Marshman were enrolled as members of the Young People's Branch of the Marion County W. C. T. U., and Miss Dora Nordquest was appointed superintendent of the living ink department, at a meeting last night in City Rescue.

The local branch has been given permission of the national treasury, Postmaster General Walter Brown, and the local postmaster, French Crow, to hang a framed copy of the Kellogg peace pact in the lobby of the local postoffice. Steps have been taken to take care of this.

Miss Janice Zechman presided at the program. A reading, "New Year's Address," was given by Nick Bader, followed by "New Years Resolve," by Walter Miller. Two readings, "Ring Joyful Bells," by Miss Marie Williamson, and "It Snows," by Miss Harriet Martin, closed the program.

It was reported that the Harvard team, captained by Dwight Bacaar, was 128 points ahead of the Yale team, captained by Miss Dorothy Newby, in a membership campaign which is being conducted.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks.

A joint meeting of all grange officers in Marion county will be held Jan. 17 at the local Y. M. C. A. The meeting Jan. 21 will be open to the public.

DOCTORS NAME QUICKEST METHOD TO END A COLD

People Here Find Hospital Method Pleasant for Home Use—Relief Surprisingly Quick

Modern people no longer feel miserable and needlessly risk pneumonia by endless colds. For hospital doctors have made it tempting to end colds promptly by a pleasant corrective which has been certified as the quickest and surest of different methods tested for head colds, sneezing and chest colds.

Joseph R. Keen, for example, was treated for a severe cold caught while working at night after the heat in his office was turned off. Relief began almost at once when he was given double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a hospital certified corrective. By night his fever had abated. In the morning soreness was clearing up rapidly. Clinical examination next day showed that Ayer's Pectoral had removed all trace of the cold.

Cases certified by the attending physicians show that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral gives surprisingly quick relief. Then the cold is soon gone—no longer a danger threat. And druggists guarantee this time-tested remedy to give prompt relief—or they will at once refund the price.

"COMING EVENTS cast their shadows before"
[Thomas Campbell, 1777-1844]

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Why let over-indulgence ruin the flattering curves that make the modern figure so seductive? Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the irresistible youthfulness of the modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Market Tone Improves With 3 to 6-Point Advances

OUTSIDE TRADING IS BIG BOOST TO SALES

Public Utility Group in Best Favor with Speculators and Exchange

RATE INCREASES 100,000

Market Holds Firm in Face of Many Raids by Bullish Forces

BY W. S. COUSINS
Marion Star Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Both in the early volume of trading and in the buoyant improvement of prices in all but a few important sections of the market, today's session was a slight improvement over yesterday's. Encouraged by the ability of the market to hold firmly in the face of repeated bear raids and liquidation over the past few days, the bulls marked up prices on the active steel, utility, copper and other shares, in some of which net gains of three to six points were recorded. Trading increased about 100,000 shares an hour over yesterday and brokers' houses were a little better pleased with the demand for stocks from outside sources.

As a group the public utility stocks were in the best favor with outside speculators. There have been so many "false starts" in the copper, oil and other well-known shares that many traders have placed them on the black list, temporarily at least. From the technical stock market standpoint, these stocks are unusually strong, and ready to respond quickly to the favorable developments in their industries.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 9—Aided by strength in foreign markets and a slightly improved export trade, local wheat prices made a very moderate recovery yesterday. Short covering and buying by houses with foreign connections supplied the purchasing power.

Coarse grains and rye were firmer with wheat, but corn and oats held to a very narrow range in a light trade. Strength in the cash market and severe weather were influences in corn.

Export Trade Better

Liverpool was sharply higher, reporting a better demand for wheat adn an oversold condition in the futures market. The local market opened higher and made further advances with active buying by shorts and commission houses with foreign connections. Trade quieted down, but gains were well maintained until late, when prices eased, with a reaction at Winnipeg a factor.

Export news was more favorable and the psychological bearishness of the Russian offerings appeared over, with new reports of Russia being in the market for flour considered bullish. By the close, seaboard inquired for 47,000 tons of wheat for Portugal. This is equal to about 1,900,000 bushels and includes about 750,000 bushels, said to have been booked yesterday. This suggested total sales yesterday of 1,300,000 bu.

It was said all the No. 2 hard available at the Gulf at May price had been cleaned up and Omaha advised of an improving basis, though

Butter and eggs were off two cents this morning, bringing both to new low levels for this season of the year.

The amount of butter now being held in storage here has been responsible for an effort to lower this storage supply by price cutting. The result is that butter was down to 40 to 46 cents a pound this morning. Only a few weeks ago the price hung around the 50-cent mark.

Present indications are that butter will be even lower by the end of the week, according to grocers today.

Eggs have lost two cents to stand at 40 to 48 cents a dozen.

Flour Trade Quiet

From the latter market came reports of an extremely quiet flour trade, with bookings near the low on the crop at only 20 per cent of capacity. Sales are said to have ranged at their present low ebb for the longest period in history.

Weekly weather crop report spoke of generally favorable conditions, though there is some dryness and drifting in the Southwest.

Corn trade continued very quiet. Strength in wheat and the less favorable weather together with light country offerings and firmness in the cash market caused a little buying. Buyers said that less corn is booked for arrival than at any time in years.

THE

Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

These Husbands

THE lover says it with flowers, the husband says it with checks, and then somebody comes along and says it with WORDS—and the divorce suit is on.

Husbands are like buttons—all the either "unbend" tearing holes or "getting entangled" in something.

* * *

The greatest check a man can have is to wake up and find himself married to the woman he thought he was fooling.

Almost any man could have his wife jumping through hoops, if he would use half the petting, patience and persuasiveness on her that he lavishes on a bucking mustache.

* * *

After ten years of marriage, a woman's heart reacts like a punching bag to a man's criticism—but there never comes a time when his flattery can't make a dent in it.

* * *

Sometimes a man's love making is like a fancy valentine, is so elaborate and full of frills that the real sentiment is entirely lost.

Of COURSE, married men are more interesting than bachelors. Diamonds receive their brilliancy by grinding them one on another—and so do human minds!

* * *

Losing one's husband suddenly, says the Paris dressmaker, is like having the water turned off without notice. You never realize in how many little ways you depended on them!

* * *

You can always tell, by the alacrity or reluctance with which a man hangs up the telephone receiver, whether he has been talking to his wife or to "another little woman of his acquaintance."

Steel Production Takes Upturn; Prospects Bright

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9—After two months of sharp curtailment steel production has taken an upturn and the outlook for further improvement is bright, the Iron Age will say tomorrow in its weekly review of the iron and steel trade.

"The improvement in steel demand is due mainly to an increase in the number of specifications rather than in their size," the magazine will say. "Buyers are still very cautious, and it is too early to determine how much of the increase they are now releasing represents higher consumption of steel and how much reflects larger current needs."

totally new-process gasoline in years

raised the standard overnight to new power... new mileage... new anti-knock quality

Try it! You are the real judge

YOU'VE read of so-called new gasolines many times. Yet Purol-Pep is the first totally new-process gasoline in years.

Many have asked us what we put in it to accomplish such revolutionary results. Our answer is—absolutely nothing. Purol-Pep is all gasoline. The result obtained with it set a totally new standard. There is nothing else like it—because this new Gyro Vapor-phase process has never before been employed in gasoline refining. More than three million dollars were spent by The Pure Oil Company to perfect it.

A different gasoline offered you in a different way

Ninety-nine out of a hundred motorists know pep when they feel it... hill-climbing ability when they see it... power when they experience it... and anti-knock quality when the knock is absent.

If these qualities do not exist—you are the first to know it. All the superlative claims possible cannot change that.

It is the belief of The Pure Oil Company that superlatives have had their day. It is time for a gasoline that can speak for itself in terms of pep... power... hill-climbing ability and anti-knock quality.

Purol-Pep—the totally new-process gasoline—is such a fuel. And every motorist who uses one tankful will understand exactly what we mean.

Try it! It sells itself!

You're the judge! Fill your tank with Purol-Pep. Give it time to get through the carburetor. Then you'll get the thrill of all your driving experience. Purol-Pep is a pure petroleum product colored blue for identification only. You can get it from the white pumps at Pure Oil Company Service Stations and authorized dealers.

NOW!

A complete line of Purol gasolines—a type to meet every motoring requirement

1. Purol-Pep

The new Gyro Vapor-phase process gasoline

If you're driving a high-compression motor... if you love a new sensation, no matter what type of motor you drive... if you want to see the toughest hills look like straightaway stretches ... if you want more pep... more power... more anti-knock quality than you ever dreamed possible—then Purol-Pep is the gasoline for you.

2. Purol Detonox

A premium gasoline for high-compression motors

Improved! And the premium reduced to 21¢! Thousands know Detonox as one of the few really superior anti-knock, quick-starting extra-power gasolines. Now—due to increased volume and the adoption of new refining processes—Purol Detonox has been given more power, more anti-knock quality... and the premium reduced. If you want a truly superior premium gasoline—rating high among those on the market—Purol Detonox is the gasoline for you. A pure gasoline, colored red for identification only.

3. Purol Gasoline

For mileage, power and economy

Improved Purol Gasoline! Now a regular gasoline is available that will more than meet the great popular demand. Purol—always popular full and sweet-running, is now a skillfully blended gasoline with new power and smoothness. RAILROAD WILL PAY CRASH EXPENSES

Pennsylvania Denies Any Responsibility, but Will Aid Victims' Families

WOOSTER, Jan. 9—The Pennsylvania railroad today announced that it would defray all of the expenses of the killed and injured in the tragic interurban crash at Shreve, last Friday night.

A Pennsylvania bus hit a Burbank school bus and seven young boys were killed and nine other persons injured.

Because several families of the victims of the high crash have little financial resources, C. A. Gibbens, county school superintendent, appealed to the Pennsylvania railroad for assistance.

Gibbens today received the following message:

"Although denying the responsibility for the unfortunate accident, the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., in a humanitarian spirit, has informed the interested parties that it will assume the medical, hospital and funeral expenses."

Get Reporter Out Early

Gov. and Mrs. Cooper Seen for Breakfast Interview After Visit in Marion

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Marion Star Staff Writer

IF you talk to Governor or Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper while they're stopping off in Marion, you don't eat breakfast in bed. The governor and his wife were guests of Hotel Harding Tuesday night, enroute to Wauseon, for the dedication of Harrison Memorial hospital.

The Coopers were down for breakfast shortly after 7 o'clock Wednesday morning and planned to be away on the last lap of the trip by 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Cooper, one of the most charming first-ladies to grace Ohio's executive mansion, was in the lobby in the morning when the reporter slid into the hotel on the heel of a wet galosh. Mrs. Cooper was in blue, of a delightful shade, and was talking animatedly with W. N. Harder, local attorney who is a personal friend of the Coopers.

THERE was mystery surrounding this visit, until Mrs. Cooper laughingly explained that the weather forecast at Columbus was that sleet and snow were coming.

In order that they might not disappoint those who were expecting them at Wauseon the governor and his wife started the preceding night and made Marion their stopping-off place.

But there was no sleet or snow, nothing but a steady downpour of rain. The governor was in his room, preparing to leave immediately, and the only thing that was holding up the continuing of the trip was the chauffeur, eating in the coffee shop.

Defendant Acquitted in Directed Verdict

In the first criminal jury case to be tried in municipal court under a new state law requiring such a jury to be drawn from the jury wheel in common pleas court, Mrs. Dan Tyler, North Main st., yesterday received a directed verdict of not guilty of a charge of destruction of property.

The jury decided Mrs. Tyler was not guilty in approximately one moment of deliberation.

GRAND

TAKING all of the successful features of stage hits and all of the standard effective hits, the author of "Tildy Ann," the current offering of the Myrtyl Ross Players at the Grand, has concocted a sure-fire stock company laughing play.

"Tildy Ann" is one of those Cinderella plays with the staunch hero, mistreated heroine, spongy and domineering relatives, and dyed-in-the-wool slick villi-yun.

As a result of this concoction Monday night's audience at the Grand received "Tildy Ann" as no other play this season has been received.

At the end of the first act there is a fainting spree—that's a good name for it—in which nearly every player on the stage topples over. And as one after the other went down the audience went into such howling glee that the players were unable to read more than five speeches at a time without being interrupted. As the play went on this laugh-interruption business continued.

"TILDY ANN" may remind one of many plays they have seen. It has the "Peg of My Heart" finge with Tildy Ann taken into relatives' home when her father dies. She is treated as a servant, and her money, left in an uncle's trust, squandered.

But, as the old plays had it, murder will out and so Tildy Ann finally comes into her own, wins a beauty contest and walks off with a movie star who whips out his check-book and saves the uncle from jail, while the second villain—yes, there are two of them—sweeps out and bangs the door.

MISS ROSS is Tildy Ann, bringing to the role all of her stage tricks. Roles like these are so much cake in Miss Ross' hands.

Milo Boulton is the movie star, Patricia Dunphy the spoiled cousin, Harry Marlin and Barbara Gordon the uncle and aunt, Frank Ivey and Alden Berg the villains and Ernest Sharpstone the fainting town constable who never has made an arrest in all his years on the force.

Tunney May Have To Undergo Operation

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—X-ray pictures are to be taken in a few days to determine whether or not Gene Tunney must undergo an operation for a slight kidney disorder, Billy Gibson, former manager of the retired heavyweight champion, said today.

Gibson said if the pictures revealed a stone, an operation would be performed.

Tunney's ailment is not the result of body blows received in the ring, his former manager declared.

Varnish Remover on Fire in Theater Booth

Fire did slight damage in the ticket booth of the Marion theatre shortly before 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when steel wool, being used with varnish remover on the booth, established a contact with electrical wires, igniting the varnish remover.

Companies No. 1 and 2 of the fire department answered the call, but the blaze had been extinguished when they arrived.

Persons who saw smoke rolling over the eaves of the Charles Lusk home, 085 Wilson av., thought the house to be afire, and called the fire department. Investigation by firemen of company No. 1 revealed that the smoke, coming from a chimney in the rear part of the roof, was being blown towards the front of the home by the wind.

WILL ATTEND MEETING

Phillipss, manager of the Marion store of the Richman Brothers Co. has received an invitation to attend a sales conference at the company's general offices and factory in Cleveland, Jan. 13 and 14. Elyria Council Asks Police Force Inquiry

ELYRIA, Jan. 9—Following a decision by city council, an investigation was launched here today into Elyria's police department. The probe was asked because of developments arising from a shooting escapade recently when George Lemke, now an inmate of the Toledo State Hospital for the Insane, disarmed two policemen and started firing their revolvers. Lemke was finally overpowered and taken into custody.

You wouldn't care to meet Marvin

MONEY. Charm. Ability. In all New York there was no abler man in his field. Yet people called him "the prince of pariahs."

Men thought him a great fellow—for a little while. Women grew romantic about him—until they knew. People welcomed him at first—then dropped him as though he were an outcast.

Poor Marvin, yearning so for companionship and always denied it. Poor Marvin, ignorant of his nickname and ignorant, likewise, of the foundation for it.

Halitosis (unpleasant breath) is the damning, unforgivable, social fault. It doesn't announce its presence to its victims. Consequently it is the last thing people suspect themselves of having—but it ought to be the first.

For halitosis is a definite daily threat to all. And for very obvious reasons, physicians explain. So slight a matter as a decaying tooth may cause it. Or an abnormal condition of the gums. Or fermenting food particles skipped by the tooth brush. Or minor nose and throat infections. Or excesses of eating, drinking and smoking.

Intelligent people recognize the risk and minimize it by the regular use of full strength Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle. Night and morning. And between times before meeting others.

Listerine quickly checks halitosis because Listerine is an effective antiseptic and germicide which immediately strikes at the cause of odors. Furthermore, it is a powerful deodorant, capable of overcoming even the scent of onion and fish.

Keep Listerine handy in home and office. Carry it when you travel. Take it with you on your vacation. It is better to be safe than snubbed.

A bill has been offered in the lower house of congress to make the killing of a bald eagle punishable by a fine of $100, or a sentence of sixty days in jail, or both. Isn't the proposal somewhat like the action of the fellow who locked his barn door after his horse had been stolen?

Advices from The Hague are to the effect that the parties to the second conference for the adoption of the Young reparations plan are deadlocked on every major question. The avowed wets in the lower house of congress have made the discovery that that body stands squarely behind the coast guard when it does its duty, as it did in the capture of the rum-running Black Duck. The rebuke given Congressman La Guardia, following his attack on the guard for the slaying of three of its crew, can be interpreted in no other way.

A Public Utility Victory.

Although this week's ruling of the United States supreme court, that the rates of public utilities must be based on their present value, applies directly only to the United Railways and Electric company, of Baltimore, it carries comfort to all public utilities seeking an increase of rates.

The merit of this particular contention of the Baltimore company is not of special general interest, but the ruling of the highest judicial tribunal in the land is, for it will serve as a bar to the contention, so often made in the past, that public utilities should be appraised for rate-making purposes at their actual cost value, rather than at their reproduction value. This is not directly set out in the court's opinion, but it is as good as established just the same.

Justice Sutherland, in delivering the majority opinion—a minority opinion having been written by Justice Brandeis in which Justices Holmes and Stone concurred—said in part:

"What is a fair return within this principle—fair profit— can not be settled by invoking decisions of this court made years ago based upon conditions radically different from those today.

"The problem is one to be tested primarily by present-day conditions. Annual returns upon capital and enterprise, the wages of employes, cost of maintenance and related expense, have materially increased.

"There is much evidence in the record to the effect that in order to induce the investment of capital in the enterprise or to enable the company to compete successfully in the market for money to finance its operations, a net return upon the valuation fixed by the commission should not be far from eight per cent."

Incidentally, it may be said that the majority opinion is right in line with the recommendation of the master commissioner named by the court to consider the facts in the matter of the valuation of the railroads of the country for rate-making purposes, which was adverse to the contention of the radical element in congress that the cost valuation was that which should rule.

Carbon Monoxide Problem Solved.

Dr. J. C. W. Frazier, of Johns Hopkins university, has announced the discovery of a chemical by the use of which the danger of carbon monoxide, the gas which has been responsible for so many deaths since the automobile came into general use, is entirely eliminated. The announcement was withheld, so the doctor states, until the chemical had been put to the most severe tests, not only laboratory tests, but also tests in confined spaces simulating closed garages and tests on both long and short highway trips, one of the long trips being from Baltimore to a point in Mississippi and return, the car on which the chemical was used having been driven under most unfavorable conditions. In all cases the chemical was found effective, and there is no doubt in the mind of either the doctor or his assistants parties to the trials that a means has been found to eliminate this cause of fatal accidents, and remove as well a source of discomfort and impaired vitality on the part of those who are compelled to breathe atmosphere polluted by gas-engine exhausts. More than this, when the use of the chemical becomes general—for it is next to impossible to think that such a safeguard will not be generally utilized—it will eliminate the offensive odor associated with the exhaust of motor vehicles, the smoke will be consumed before it has opportunity to pollute the air and the heat generated in the oxidation of the noxious gases will offer opportunities for better utilization of the heat value of the fuel used.

The discovery is the outgrowth of research work prosecuted by the doctor and his staff for the government chemical warfare service during the World war, which will give an idea of the extent of the experimentation leading up to it. At present experts are working on a simplification of the device by which the chemical is used, on which Dr. Frazier has made application for a patent.

It is no secret that some solution of the carbon monoxide gas problem has long been sought by automobile experts. Such being the case, the use of the Frazier discovery by the automobile industry generally may be the more readily predicted. It would so often mean the difference between life and death that the automobile people not only will not fail to utilize it, but also will be glad to adopt it. And in addition to this, as Dr. Frazier points out, it will remove discomfort and loss of vitality to those compelled to breathe the fumes of the poisonous gas, and that, in this motor age, will mean that it will be of benefit to the public generally.

The discovery can not do other than prove of inestimable value to the public. The one regret possible in connection with it is that it did not come sooner—before carbon monoxide had caused hundreds, if not thousands, of fatalities and done injury to the health of scores of thousands.

Dr. Frazier and his assistants are to be congratulated as benefactors of humanity.

For the second time within the last few weeks three bandits held up and robbed the bank of Fairland, Indiana. This week they were pursued by a posse of citizens, and the inside of the automobile abandoned by them was found badly stained with fresh blood; which gives the Hoosier citizens hope that the next time they will have better luck and make good bandits of them.

General Pershing refuses to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator in Nebraska, stating that he never has had and hasn't now any desire for public office. Of course, the general is too polite to let out that he is more or less careful about his associations.

Last-minute statistics issued from Washington show that this country has the lowest built cruiser construction of any of the parties to the five-power naval conference to meet in London this month with the exception of Italy. If we are as generous in the coming conference as we were in the Washington, we may stand at the bottom of the list at the conclusion of the gathering.

Statistics issued at Ottawa show that approximately 1,000,000 people from the United States expended $300,000,000 in Canada in 1929. At the prevailing prices for liquid delight up in Canada an average expenditure of $75 should have afforded visitors from this side of the line at least half a dozen headaches, each.

It will not do for Americans to jeer at the simplicity of the Briton who turned over $35,000 to two apparently honest young men up in Canada, who promised to double his money for him in the stock market over night; not since thousands upon thousands of them turned over their savings last year for dabbling in the New York stock exchange.

Engineers found a great log jam, 200 feet underground in the Skokomish river valley out in Washington, which they figure filled up the channel of the river at some time in the past, causing it to cut another channel after its waters had dumped earth on top of the jammed logs. Something of a light on what nature will do in a comparatively short period of time, for the first logging on the river was not much more than half a century ago.

WILL IT COME TO THIS?

Worry a Cause of Ill-Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Mental poise is the normal condition of the mind. It follows that mental discord is an abnormal condition of the mind.

If you would have mental harmony, or mental poise you must exclude all wrong thoughts. Each of us must make a determined effort to overcome all bad mental habits.

There is not a shadow of doubt that worry is one of the chief causes of ill health. There is no end to the disturbances in the human system that are caused by worrying over this thing and that.

Also, jealousy, fear, hatred, despondency, grief and all similar emotions are due to bad thoughts. They have a devastating effect on the system.

Mental discord wastes nerve energy. It wastes it as physical overexertion does. It may result in a real disturbance of the digestion, or of the important glands of secretion. The effects are bound to be felt in every cell of the body.

The functioning of the body is dependent upon the degree of nerve energy we possess. These emotions of ours not only use up nerve energy, but they create conditions which may permit the development of poisonous substances in the body. The effect of these may be to produce disease.

When you permit yourself to enjoy fully the right food under the right conditions, you enable the stomach and the glands which supply the digestive fluids to function properly. You have the nerve energy to complete digestion. If you are in the wrong frame of mind at mealtime, your body is in a wrong condition to function properly.

Even though the meal is a simple one, it should be eaten in an atmosphere of harmony and peace. There can be no doubt of this.

For the sake of your happiness and good health it is well to have a real purpose in your everyday life. There should be a definite, constructive purpose for each day. This will prevent aimless thoughts and give you a better outlook on life. Vigorous mental habits tending to wholesome thoughts, do much to maintain good health.

We know the power of the mind to depress the spirits and slow the heart. Bad news makes "the heart stand still." The opposite is true—good news, happiness, contentment and enthusiasm stimulate the heart. The thought has a remarkable effect on the body. We are well off only when the mind is working normally and happily.

When you establish faith in something or somebody you are setting up a right train of thought. Faith removes fear, it removes worry and many other mental discords. Each of us has to develop habits of mental poise. We must have mental harmony if we are to maintain good health.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

S. J. Q—What causes my jaw to crack while talking?

2—What is a murmur of the heart?

3—Is a nervous heart the same as a heart murmur?

A—This is probably due to lack of synovial fluid, faultily constructed bridges, crowns or fillings which cause the jaw to be thrown forward too far. Consult your dentist for correction.

2—Mitral heart murmur is a condition where the closure of the valve of the heart is not complete and there is a consequent leakage of blood passing back through it.

3—No.

M. L. W. Q—What is the cause of canker or cold sores?

A—Canker or cold sores usually indicate an acid in the system. The diet should be corrected and constipation avoided.—Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

BRICKBATS FOR BUSINESS WOMEN.

A man who would say the unkind things about women just published by Doris E. Fleischman would probably have to seek exile until the storm blew over. Being a woman herself, and a highly successful one, she may escape with fare unscratched and hair unpulled. She is safe from the charge of calling the grapes sour, because she has made money and an important place for herself in the men's world of business as "public relations counsel." If women are as ladylike as she complains they are, they will ignore the impolite names she calls them. Her version of their faults will reach many of them, since it appears in the January Ladies' Home Journal, but she evidently is not afraid of counter-attack or even quiet refutation of her unflattering accusations.

Eight and a half million women in the United States work in all of the 572 occupations except thirty-five. They are employed in many industries for which they would have been considered totally unfitted two or three decades ago. There are nearly 60,000 of them, for example, in the iron and steel industries. They have tackled everything, from the hardest physical labor to the professions requiring special mental aptitudes and long training. After going into all this side of the work of women, Miss Fleischman asks herself if women are "fairly successful." She thinks not.

Because they have not come out at the top of their line after starting in, as many self-made men do, at inferior and menial tasks, she calls them failures. It is true that many young women, beginning as stenographers, describe themselves and honestly believe themselves to be well educated, ambitious, brimming with intuitive judgment, executive ability and the desire to climb to the top of the ladder. If they find in a few years that they overrated their capacities, it is no more than many young men do. Of every five workers in the country, one is a woman. A list of outstandingly successful men at the age of, say fifty, naturally numbers many more names than a corresponding list of women. It undoubtedly numbers more than four times as many names, a proportion which should satisfy the most ambitious woman, since it squares with the proportion of both sexes working. But twenty-five or thirty years ago, when these now prominent men and women were getting their start, there was not only a much greater discrepancy between the numbers of men and women working; there was an even greater difference in the opportunities open to them. If the women can master not a fifth, but a fiftieth, of the genuinely successful, they have a record to be proud of.—New York Times.

THE GYPSY.

Two men known as Gypsies have been sent to the reformatory at Anamosa for swindling an Iowa farmer out of several thousand dollars. No Gypsy had been confined in that institution for fifteen years.

The wandering Gypsy has practically disappeared in this country. He has gone the way of the medicine show and the one ring circus. Those who remain travel in big cars and have usually found a more lucrative business than telling fortunes and stealing horses.

Since their first appearance in Europe in the fifteenth century, Gypsies have been wanderers and thus have been foreigners wherever they were. The early European bands claimed to be Egyptians—thus the name "Gypsies"—exiled by the Saracens. But they have long since been more decisively traced to India, and they are still numerous only in Hungary, Turkey, and other parts of eastern Europe. The true Gypsy never made any great appearance in the United States, but dark-skinned immigrant bands who preferred to roam this country adopted the romance and color of the Gypsy life as well as its method of sustenance. And as the rural folk became less and less susceptible to this Gypsy's wiles, he has gradually withdrawn to the centers thickly populated by his own races.

We who used to run to the cellar and hide, for fear of being kidnapped, when the cloth-covered Gypsy wagons filed through town may lament his passing, for he furnished a picturesque background to our childhood. But after all, his disappearance represents a step upward in the social average.—Des Moines Register.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Most of us are people who are going to do something. Few of us, however, do it. We are going to do it by and by—after awhile. Poet Riley once wrote some beautiful verses on life's Afterwhiles. After awhile we will take it easier, have time to read, to travel, to see more of our friends, to do the things we really want to do, to express ourselves at our best. When? O, not now. That would be impudence. We are much too busy. Owen Meredith wrote, many years ago: "There's nothing certain in man's life but this: that he must lose it."

In the face of this certainty is it not strange that we can not manage our lives better than we do?

Shall we abolish college and instead build some institution of learning? That's what Phillips, of Denver university, would do. Making a speech, he says:

"I am not attempting to patch up a rotten ship. I propose the building of a new type of ship."

He would not produce mighty warriors of the gridiron, sorority sisters and fraternity brothers. He would drive out the flapper, the loafer, and the idle rich. There would be no place for the youngsters who come only to study "campustry." He would ignore athletics and try to do something with brains, if any were to be had.

With all his good ideas Professor Phillips is a bit too radical. Throw youngsters who can't swim into strange waters and perhaps one or two will get to shore. Most of them will drown. He will have to proceed slowly with his reforms.

Taxicab accidents in Constantinople, according to a prominent Turkish physician there, are caused by love affairs and insanity. Chauffeurs wear attractive uniforms. Flirtation is stimulated. The brass buttons on the uniforms of American policemen have a somewhat similar effect. This makes drivers careless. The doctor says further that some of the drivers are insane because of alcoholism and the use of drugs.

Evidently the modern city of Constantinople is up against a serious problem—with taxi drivers either in love or insane or both. Perhaps it's all the same thing. If that be the case it will be hard to confine the epidemic to chauffeurs.

IMPOSITION ON FARMERS.

Editor Star—Now that the hunting season is over, I wish to write a few lines in regard to hunting in general. You have no doubt heard, as I have frequently heard, the question asked by some of our city friends why so many farmers object to hunting on their land. The answer is easily found, and is simply this: the abuse that is suffered by farmers who allow promiscuous hunting on their farms. What would a city man think to hear the booming discharge of a shotgun back in the alley and then hear the shot rattle through the shrubbery in his backyard? Nothing will make the average farmer any madder than to walk across his farm and find where some accommodating hunter has cut a good wire fence to allow his dog to pass through. There are very few fences at the end of the hunting season that are not permanently damaged to some extent by heavy men climbing over them, even if they are not cut. Do you suppose any farmer would give his consent to any man to hunt on his farm if he knew he had a pair of pliers concealed in his hunting kit, prepared to cut a fence whenever it became an inconvenience to him? The writer of this sketch had another experience this fall in that we were feeding a bunch of hogs in one of the fields furthest from the house and a brood of young chickens got the habit of going to that place to eat grain with the hogs. I can not say positively what became of them, but before the season was half gone the chickens had entirely disappeared. A neighbor had a calf injured by coming into contact with a few stray shot. The writer of this article had his first opportunity this fall to indulge in that particular luxury commonly known as "boodles whisky offered by a friendly hunter which was declined with thanks. When the hunting season of 1930 arrives, it is my opinion there will be more farms posted against hunting than ever before.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 9—A photographer in New York and one in Hollywood charge $1,000 a sitting. And they have a steady patronage. Thus has the roaming and seedy typer made way for a highly-specialized artist who now stands with the great.

There are any number in New York who ask $100 before proofs are delivered and among top-notchers it is necessary to make appointments many weeks in advance. Often one must pose for Christmas photographs in July. The de luxe members of the guild wear the tag of celebrity.

They are pointed out at first nights as are patrons of expensive cafes, the opera, and otherwise figure in the social doings of the town. Many are taken on world cruises in private yachts. Two have appeared before Europe by royal command. Each occupies a very special field.

One is famed for posing stage beauties. Another has made a specialty of artists and writers, copies of which he displays in his outside cabinet along the avenue. Still another has a gift for stressing the cold and steely jaw of masters of big business.

There are baby experts, and Greenwich village has a lens luminary with a reputation for artistic likenesses of dogs and cats—charging $50 a sitting whether you decide to make selections or not. A Park Avenue studio deals only with men and women in middle age.

Quite a number affect a "Left Bank" manner of dress, with velveteen house coats, purple smocks and jaunty tams. There are others who sprout wisps of waxed imperials and feature long locks of hair. The studios are often in the musty skylight attic of outmoded private homes.

The patron must toil up a long flight of stairs where a mere calling card thumbtacked to a door sill announces the artist. Perhaps tea will be served and a cigaret puffed along with much arty high-blown talk. For the modern photographer is also a press agent.

It is a long yelp from the old-time grim picture when everybody in the family dressed up and started for town before daylight. In those days the children watched expectantly for "the little bird" while the gargle-voiced photographer pressed the bulb. There was also the head rack, a relic of the Inquisition, that kept heads from moving. Yet even in those days the photographer was a romantic figure in little town lives—here today and gone tomorrow. He symbolized worldliness.

In our neighborhood, once a week, usually in the early morning or during the late afternoon dull, there appears out of nowhere a leather-lunged seller of fake extra editions. His rousing cry sounds something like this: "X-traw, X-traw! Bong a gong, s'death read all 'bout it! X-traw! X-traw!" Although we know he is a gyping rascal, most of us, overcome by curiosity, permit him to work his will on us.

This afternoon I proceeded to indulge in a burst of righteous indignation. After buying a week-old paper, glancing at it, I told him I was a daredevil that I am—he should be arrested. "Want your money back?" he bellowed. I did, and took it. And somehow I felt pretty cheap.

Picturesque Siam.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

The traveler in search of something different may go a long way before he finds anything to equal the picturesque sights which will meet his eyes in Siam.

The Siamese people are almost all of the peasant class, and their principal occupation is the raising of rice. The typical peasant home is a wooden structure on long poles standing on the bank of a river or creek. It consists of one, two or three oblong buildings opening on to a wooden platform, to which a flight of steps or a crude ladder descends to the ground or into the water. Each oblong consists of one or more rooms opening into a narrow veranda which skirts the platform. The kitchen occupies a small back room, from which refuse is dropped through holes in the floor.

The people being mostly riparian, it follows that they are expert watermen. Children usually learn to swim as early as they learn to walk, women go in boats to markets which are held on the water, and monks make their alms seeking rounds in canoes. Many people live in boats, and practically all transportation is by water.

One of the most peculiar customs in Siam revolves above a special class of inhabitants called Mon, many of whom occupy official positions. They are of Talaing stock and descend in many cases from captives of war taken from the old Pegu kingdom in Burma. The Mon are recognized by a little fringe around their foreheads, as Siamese men seldom indulge in long hair. The Mon and other officials, no matter how petty, are extremely supercilious and overbearing in their attitude toward ordinary citizens.

DELEGATIONS FAIL IN BATTLE OVER DEBT

Hague Conference Adjourns; Agreement on Removing Military Sanctions

LONDON, Jan. 9—After 90 minutes of fruitless discussion, the meeting of the "big six" delegations to the reparations conference at the Hague adjourned today with the situation as hopeless as before.

Efforts to obtain a compromise on the sanctions issue failed, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from the Hague declared.

The adjournment was due to refusal of the German delegates to recede from their demands that military sanctions in the event of default under the Young plan be abolished. They hold that the former allied nations should trust to Germany's honor and good will that the reparations annuities will be paid regularly.

PEACE IS SEEN IN CLEVELAND STRIKE

Tentative Basis for Settlement of Differences Agreed Upon by Officials

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9—The olive branch of peace was borne into Cleveland's strike torn garment industry today with the announcement that a tentative basis for the settlement of difficulties has been agreed upon by officials of the ladies garment workers union and representatives of the Cleveland garment manufacturers association.

While details of the agreement are withheld, it is reported that it is a compromise arrangement. The proposition will be placed before the strikers at a mass meeting tomorrow. Meanwhile, various strike committees of the union will pass upon the settlement arrangement today.

Approval of the garment workers to the proposition with the manufacturers' association will narrow the field of the strike here down to the manufacturers aligned with the American Plan association and other independent producers who refuse to enter into a collective agreement.

Satisfactory culmination of the settlement with the manufacturers' association will result in the resumption of production here on a 65 per cent operation basis by Monday, according to union officials.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 9—Charged with the possession of 120 quarts of "home-brew" and a whisky highball, Albert Rege, until yesterday marshal of the village of North College Hill and alleged proprietor of the White Leghorn inn, and George Baumann, 43, the caretaker, are to face preliminary hearing Jan. 20.

Federal officers swooped down upon the inn yesterday and confiscated the beer and whisky highball. It was alleged that four men were found playing cards for money.

At their arraignment, the two men, who are under arrest, pleaded not guilty and were liberated under bonds totalling $3,500.

Rege immediately resigned from his position as marshal.

PARLEY DELEGATES OFF FOR MEETING

...e and cross the Atlantic in quest of ...amicable understanding with the United States.

...this cause he was successful, ...the American delegates to the forthcoming naval conference set sail today under far different conditions than obtained two years ago. At Geneva two years ago, it was British-American differences that led to a semi-violent breakup of President Coolidge's effort to obtain further naval agreement.

Today, however, substantial agreement already exists between the two English-speaking nations on the broad principles of naval limitation. There still is a slight difference between them over the cruiser question, but it amounts to only three ships involving some 30,000 tons. And no one anticipates that any insuperable difficulties will be encountered in adjusting this.

Stimson Heads Delegation

The American delegation to London is headed by Secretary of State Stimson and includes Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Dwight W. Morrow, whose post-war diplomacy in Mexico has won him unstinted praise from all parties and factions; Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, who was Gov. Alfred E. Smith's running mate in the last campaign, and is now Democratic leader of the senate; Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, one of the Republican leaders of the senate; and last, but by no means least, Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, veteran of a dozen important international conferences, and probably more familiar than any layman with the intricate questions of naval limitation. It was Gibson who brilliantly presented America's case at the ill-fated Geneva parley.

With the seven principal delegates go seven who are characterized as "advisers" — Admiral William V. Pratt, commander of the battleship fleet; Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, who was Gibson's chief aide at Geneva; Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson; Arthur Wilson Page of New York; J. Theodore Marriner, George A. Gordon and George Rublee, all bureau chiefs of the state department.

There are also eight identified as the "naval technical staff"—Rear Admirals J. R. P. Pringle, W. A. Moffett (naval air chief); H. E. Yarnell and A. J. Hepburn; Captains W. W. Smith and A. B. Van Keuren; Commander H. C. Train and Lieutenant Campbell.

With secretaries, stenographers, clerks and other personnel, including newspaper correspondents, the American contingent comprised almost a hundred persons.

On Special Train

They quietly left Washington on a special train this morning for Hoboken, where they were to board the George Washington and sail this afternoon.

Reminiscent of the war days the "goodbyes" of relatives of the office personnel were said with hugs and kisses just before the Pennsylvania's special train pulled out promptly at 9 a. m.

The train consisted of nine cars and two diners and its schedule gave it a clear right-of-way. Secretary of the Navy Adams was the only delegate aboard, the others having gone to New York on regular trains during the last few days.

TO RESUME SEARCH

Weather Clearing and Pilots Plan To Hunt for Reid and Mechanics

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 9—With the weather showing some indication of clearing, it was hoped here today that it would be possible to begin an aerial search for Capt. "Pat" Reid and his two mechanics, William Hughes and James Hutchinson.

The three airmen have been missing since Saturday, after hopping off from here for Nome, whence they were to start a search for Carl Ben Nielson and Earl Borland, who have been lost since Nov. 9.

While storms held planes on the ground here, at Nulato and Nome, a search for the trio by dog team was started at Unalakleet. This hunt will be conducted along the Unaglik and Unalatalik rivers.

Famous Cairo Monuments Subject of Argument

CAIRO—Unintelligent restoration of some of Cairo's most famous monuments has raised a serious controversy here.

RIVER OVERFLOWS INUNDATE ROADS

Traffic Throughout This Section Impeded; Bridges Threatened

...on last night when Rubber ... became flooded in sections last night. School officials at Green Camp this morning decided against a bid in order to permit rural students to reach their homes before all roads are ...ded by high waters.

Reports that water was rising one to two inches an hour in the vicinity of Green Camp was received here today. The river is expected to be over its banks by early two feet if the rainfall continues tonight, according to residents of the village.

From Newmans bridge to Prospect, and on Taylor rd., from Green Camp to Newmans rd., traffic has been detoured.

At Prospect, the Scioto river continued today to rise at the rate of an inch and a half an hour. The river is now out of bank at several points, and is threatening Prospect at the north corporation line, according to reports from there today.

The swollen river and heavy rainfall has caused three sulphur spots in that village, and has backed up built up much of water in the basement of the schools. School will not be dismissed unless the water rises to the boiler rooms.

Roads leading out of Upper Sandusky were still covered by high waters today. The Marion-Upper Sandusky rd. was covered to a depth of four feet at one point, but below that city, according to reports from there Lincoln highway east has been inundated for the first time since 1913.

Strong Current Reported

Motorists who last night forded overflow sections of Tiffin and Sycamore roads had to from Upper Sandusky reported that strong currents had made travel on the road dangerous.

All Marion-bound traffic from that city had been rerouted through Harmster, striking the Upper Sandusky rd. again at Little Sandusky.

The Tymochtee river, which last night was nearly as threatening as the Sandusky river, has slightly receded at noon today. However, the official gauge of the Sandusky river indicated a depth of 11 and a half feet.

Government gauges at Upper Sandusky show a rainfall of 2.17 inches since Tuesday night.

In the worst decline since the 1913 flood, Bucyrus reported this morning that two streets in that city were under water in sections, and the bridges crossing the Sandusky river were but a few feet from the water.

At Campbell bridge, two and a half miles east of Caledonia, the Whetstone has overrun Harding highway east but has not stopped traffic. This creek continued to rise today.

An interurban car of the C. M. & B. Railway Co., was delayed this morning by sleet on the overhead trolley line, which permitted the car to travel at a rate of two miles an hour. The interurban was considerably behind schedule as a result.

With river levels rising and flood conditions rife, residents of several sections of Ohio today looked forward to the promised cold wave to relieve conditions.

Many rivers are out of their banks and streams are on the rampage, due to the heavy rains of the past 24 hours.

Situation Near Springfield

At Springfield, Mad River and Buck Creek were at flood stage today, and three main highways, leading from the city, are under water. The Mad River has overflowed its banks at the Rockaway plant of the Ohio Edison Co., and flooded several acres of lowland. The waters are within a foot of the tracks of the Cincinnati and Lake Erie Traction Co. there.

Though the Ohio river was rising slowly along the southern border of the state, little alarm was felt there.

The Olentangy river fell its banks at Delaware and the water flooded the Delaware chair factory property. The river was reported to be about three feet above flood stage.

Columbus lowlands also were inundated by the Olentangy river. Reports from Mansfield declared that several culverts in Richland county had been washed out by the high waters.

Predictions of colder weather gave promise of relief. At Toledo, the thermometer was hovering around the freezing mark and a sleet storm there had ironed the trees with ice. The cold wave is moving southward.

The storm gods unleashed their furies today and shook almost the entire country with battering blizzards, icy rains, sleet, snow, subfreezing and sub zero temperatures.

Snow which has fallen continuously for four days left the Rocky Mountain states weather-bound with even more snow and colder, below-zero weather predicted.

Wide Area Covered

Heavy blankets of snow covered Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, the Dakotas, Missouri, Minnesota, Kansas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Oklahoma, Illinois, Indiana, and many other sections with no relief from falling snow for approximately the next 24 hours.

Telegraph and telephone wires of the nation, burdened by the snow, sleet and rain, almost failed completely in many localities when subfreezing temperatures snapped the brittle cables.

Trains into Chicago from the east and from the west crept into stations hours late.

Highways began to be impassable in many states and metropolitan surface cars experienced difficulty.

Air mail lines refused to send pilots into the murky haze of falling snow and traffic was at a standstill.

A few bus lines continued to operate, against the advice of weather forecasters.

The Great Lakes were again whipped into churning waves that lashed the already ice-coated shorelines and caused considerable property damage.

The coldest weather of the past 24 hours was reported at Alberta, Can., where 48 below zero was recorded.

'The Secret Trail'

A Fascinating Mystery Story

SCOTLAND YARD GOES OUT AFTER ITS MAN

BY ANTHONY ARMSTRONG

no murder had been proved against him; as far as he knew he had been guiltless of that.

The Weedy Stranger

Well, well—he again took lungfuls of the free air of London—he was clear of everything now; and Long Sam, so he had heard, was in America and likely to stay there, with the warrants out against him here.

In the meantime, he was free to take up whatever money-making line of business he liked, illicit or not. He thought of the police and laughed shortly. He did not give a snap of the fingers for all the brains of the police force. He had fooled them before and he could do it again if he wanted. The only reason they had got him that time was that he preferred capture to escape in Sam's company.

His eye roving round fell upon a weedy little man in a bowler who had been walking up and down the path in front ever since he had sat down. Jimmie Rezaire had never seen him before that morning, but he was still waiting for the other to speak to him. For the weedy man had been outside the prison gates when he had been released and had been casually re-appearing ever since. At first Jimmie had taken him to be a police spy; then he had wondered with a little catch of the breath if he was a friend of Sam's; finally he decided it was some blackmailing jackal of the underworld who wanted a share in the money which Jimmie was known to have put secretly away before being caught. After this decision, he ignored the fellow, not even bothering to shake him off; for he knew well how to deal with that class.

At last the weedy loafer casually sat down beside him and began ostentatiously to read an evening paper.

"Well?" said Jimmie abruptly.

The other started; then said: "I wondered if you'd noticed me."

"Notice!" laughed Rezaire scornfully. "Do you think I'm blind? Well, what do you want? Money?"

"I allus want money. Not this time. I'm acting for some one. Some bloke as 'ud like to get in touch with you. Mutual benefit, sez the bloke. That's why I trailed on when you came out. There was I, a-waiting at the gate," he concluded humorously.

Jimmie was slightly interested. This was unexpected. "Who is it?" he asked.

"A big bloke. Big job—with lots o' dough in it, he sez. If you're interested you're to ring Park 8465 after 7:30 tonight and ask for Mr. Jack."

"Who is it?" repeated Rezaire.

"That's all I was to say," said the other, getting up. "Can't get no more outer me. Park 8465. Good day, mister."

He shuffled off and was gone, leaving Rezaire smiling disdainfully. It was of course quite clear to him that some gang or other wanted him to join up with them. Talent in any profession was always sought after. He was not overmodest and he knew that he was a really clever criminal. He knew, too, that his exploits in that astounding flight from the police had echoed through England for many days.

He wondered vaguely what sort of gang it was. Ring Park 8465. Some one big jacking by their careful methods. Probably forgers or a big jewel job, he decided. Then he dismissed the matter from his mind, for he was not really interested. Apart from the fact that he infinitely preferred to work by himself or to choose his own helpers, he was not in need of money at the moment. He had a tidy little sum, the proceeds of that last big coup, tucked away in a Paris bank under a name which only he knew.

He got up and walked thoughtfully to the Grand Cross hotel near Trafalgar square where he had taken a room on the top floor. Jimmie Rezaire always believed in effacing himself and held that a small room in a big London hotel was about the best hiding place possible.

He Meets Vivienne

Later on the evening Jimmie Rezaire strolled down into the bar and thence into a lounge sprinkled with palm trees and wicker tables. He did not want to do anything except savor his freedom. He intended to dine well and to go to a theater. He thought pleasantly upon feminine companionship as a man does who has been in prison for a term. * * *

Then he saw Vivienne.

The shock of seeing her again almost made him stagger. Vivienne! He had often wondered during his prison days where she was. He had known at his trial that she had got away with Sam on the launch—his launch—safe to France. Then nothing more.

Yet there she was, attractive as ever, dark bobbed hair, widest brown eyes with that alluringly foreign look in their depths. At her elbow was a cocktail and by her side a fair-haired young man in a well-cut blue suit.

Jimmie Rezaire advanced. As he came across the lounge Vivienne looked up and met his gaze. A man far more modest than Jimmie could not have failed to see the interest that sprang to her eyes. With a word she dismissed her companion who vanished obediently before Rezaire reached the corner.

"Jimmie!" she cried. "What luck! I was wondering how I could get in touch with you. I knew you were just out," she added, in a lower tone.

"Well, Viv, you're as lovely as ever," replied the man as he took the vacant chair. "And I mean it. You've got a * * *"

"Jimmie, boy, before you say another word, I must thank you from the bottom of my heart for the way you helped me before you got pulled by the police. You saved me from Hollenway."

"Forget it!" said Jimmie briefly. "That's all behind us. I'm going to forget it."

"I should think so. But the way you fooled 'em all the time was wonderful. I read about your doings in the English papers while I was over in Paris just before you—you went away." She paused delicately; it is bad form among certain classes to talk openly of prison.

"What are you doing now, Viv?" asked Jimmie, changing the subject.

"Shoplifting on the grand scale," replied the girl sweetly. "Me and that young fellow, Harry Hyslop, you saw here. We've got some great schemes on. He's a good lad; plenty of go. Sent down from Oxford for forgery or something and now he's in our game. But what are you going to do? * * * Say, it is fine, your being out again. Like old times." Her eyes suddenly grew soft. She had known Jimmie very well indeed in the old days.

Jimmie Rezaire ignored the sentimental turn she had given. "I don't know what I'll do," he said seriously. "Why don't you start a private inquiry agency?"

Jimmie lay back and laughed for a full minute. Viv always had a little joke. Then he stopped. The idea was not so bad after all. With his knowledge of the underworld and of thieves's methods and above all with his clever and original brain, he could do well. It ought to give him all the excitement he wanted.

"Might—if it came to the worst," he said at last.

"Or secret service work? Lot of money there."

Something to Do

"I did something in that line once," said Rezaire reminiscently. "But"—he turned and faced the girl—"are you trying to make me run straight?"

She lowered her eyes. "Well, I don't want you to be put away again. I'd—I'd like to see something more of you."

"So you shall," he grinned. "I'm going to laze for a bit. We'll have a high old time together."

"Where'll your money come from, Jimmie boy?"

"You know, Paris. All my Robinson-Carlyle gang's takings. I * * * why, what's up?"

"Haven't you heard yet then," she gasped much concerned. "Why, of course, you can't have."

"What?"

"Sam!"

"Sam! Where?" Jimmie instantly displayed fright. At the moment he feared Sam's vengeance more than anything else in the world. "He—he's in the States, isn't he?"

"Oh, yes. He's away all right. But that money of yours in Paris. He got away with it. Found out about it from some papers of yours in the launch, forged the signature, and drew it all out. He knew you wouldn't hear anything about it till you came out, and couldn't do anything when you did."

Rezaire sat silent for some time. This was a blow. His plans for a wide and joyous holiday had vanished. And Viv was right; he could do nothing. An ex-convict cannot very well invoke the law to regain ill-gotten money from another and vanished criminal whom the police were already seeking for worse crimes than forgery. He laughed shortly. It meant he would have to alter his ideas, for he had not much of a bank balance in London. Money had suddenly become a pressing necessity.

"Well, that ought to square Sam and me," he said at last with forced hopefulness.

"Sam doesn't think so," answered Vivienne soberly.

"But * * *" Jimmie began once more, feeling the old fear of Sam's vindictive cruelty.

"Oh, don't let's talk about that ugly beast!"

"You had a row with him, eh?"

"Yes. Tried to get off with me in Paris and I said I'd put the police wise to him. So he pushed off to New York. I draw the line at living with Sam."

"You got a friend now?" asked Jimmie delicately.

"Nope," returned Vivienne with a hint of encouragement. "Hyslop's only a business partner."

Known as Mr. Ferguson

But Jimmie was again lost in thought. This affair of money was a nuisance. He would have to find something lucrative to do sooner than he had intended. He suddenly recalled the seedy man of the park seat and his offer from some person or persons unknown. Might do worse. He looked at his watch. He decided he would ring up after all and see what it was. He might get a hint or two about something good. Jimmie knew there was always a lot of big money knocking round for those with originality and daring. He turned to Vivienne.

"Where do you live, Vivienne?"

"Flat in Maida Vale," she said, and added: "By myself."

"Well, money or not, I'm going to celebrate my first evening out. We're going to have dinner at the Savoy and do a theater and then dance."

A man passing down the steps with a cigarette unlighted in his mouth stopped near Jimmie Rezaire fumbling for a match. Jimmie perceived the old game at once and was not surprised when the other, politely begging a light, added:

"Good morning, Mr. Rezaire. You are on time, I see. Permit me to introduce myself—Mr. Neasden."

"As good a name as any," smiled Jimmie closely studying the other. He saw a tall, spare man, loose limbed and with a big but narrow head. The nose was large and arched in the Roman type, the eyes set close together, the lips were thin and clean shaven. A very clever man, thought Jimmie to himself. Aloud he was politely replying that he would be delighted to walk down the Mall and discuss matters of mutual interest.

"Of course," the strange Mr. Neasden said—he spoke in a refined and pleasant voice—"you will excuse our meeting under these circumstances, but you realize I don't want you to know anything about me—should you not fancy our proposal. In my—er—little party we believe in being impersonal."

"Exactly," replied Jimmie.

"I ascertained when you were coming—er—out of retirement and had you followed, because to tell you the truth, Number One was rather keen to get you with us. He was much impressed by your ability during the events that led up to your seclusion. As you know, everything came out in the papers. The way you fooled the police was superbly conceived—if I may say so." He chuckled to himself. "To hide, as a common drunk at the price merely of next morning's fine, in the very camp of your enemies. Vine st. was a delightful whimsy. Quite after my own heart."

Into Business

"Thank you," returned Jimmie curtly, wondering when the fellow would cease his pedantically polite flattery and come to the point. All this he could see was a ploy, a defense to conceal the man's real personality. Quite possibly, he himself was this mysterious Number One he had mentioned.

"Now I gather you are free—open to come into any business?"

"Yes," replied Rezaire briskly. "I am free to come into any business, as long as there's good money in it."

"There is. Heaps. Hard cash. And I may add, you will play to a large extent a lone or rather a directing hand."

"That is what I expect," put in Jimmie, feeling he had better impress himself in his turn.

"You don't mind what you do, I suppose?"

"I draw a line at murder."

"Oh!"—the other appeared a trifle pained at this social shortcoming, as though Rezaire had said he didn't dance. "Well, I take it you have no love for the police?"

Rezaire merely chuckled.

"Dislike capitalists?"

"Like to help 'em part."

"You're not particularly patriotic?"

"I don't think so."

"Good. Then you don't really mind what line you take up?"

"If there's money in it and if I work—more or less—on my own, I'll come in on practically anything," said Jimmie decisively. He had been scrutinizing the other during the conversation and put him down as a really clever crook, a good man to work with and a dangerous enemy. He wondered what his line was and asked.

Mr. Neasden smiled slowly.

"Well," he said, "well, I fly very high. What would you say to a high-class burglary campaign, each affair carefully planned out beforehand and for a definite object? There are many gentlemen in foreign countries who are willing to pay well for certain valuable articles, such as pictures, manuscripts and the like, which but for our efforts, would not come on the market at all. Collectors have no morals."

He shook his head. "But we can't talk here, though you see I trust you. Will you consider the matter and meet me tonight at a more convenient place, with your decision?"

"Gratefully," agreed Rezaire. "Where?"

"Well, I find a restaurant is always good," answered Neasden in his pedantic manner. "There's a little place in Soho, in Wardour st., called the Coin de Paradis. He described the way to it. "Will you be there at 9:30 tonight, after dinner, and I will be alone. Go to the room upstairs; and I should advise you to order a quarter flask of the Old Red Chianti; I can recommend it. Good day!"

Jimmie Rezaire watched him as he moved off with a long shambling gait. Then he drew at his cigar once or twice and threw the butt away. Finally he whistled with mingled amusement and surprise. Burglary on a cultivated scale was the game then. A lot of money to be made there with properly worked-out plans. Anyway, he had practically made his decision. But, a little furrow appeared between his eyes, he supposed if he were wise, Neasden was a peculiar man and under his pose of long-winded politeness, a dangerous customer. His quick gaze had noticed a crease in the other's coat running from the bottom button to the side pocket, as though that pocket generally held something rather heavy. Jimmie did not like dealing with people who habitually carried heavy things in their side pockets. Jimmie was a man of peace; he abhorred physical violence because the very thought of pain made him afraid.

He spent the rest of the morning in various financial transactions. At the end of them he discovered that his assets were a bare £200. That would not last long, thought Jimmie, for he liked to live well. The sooner he got something lucrative to do the better, and he viewed the stranger's proposal in a more enthusiastic light.

An Ideal Subordinate

Rezaire lunched with Vivienne and her young partner, Harry Hyslop, at a restaurant near Leicester square. The meal was lively, for they had a table in a discreet corner. Hyslop, who turned out to be quite a humorist in his way, described to Jimmie the latest dodge they had worked in their "shop-lifting" campaign.

It certainly was a clever trick and had resulted in the acquisition of two valuable fur coats. Jimmie was much amused. He also conceived a certain patronizing admiration for Hyslop. At first he had thought him sloppy, both in looks and in his fatuous manner of talking, but under this exterior Jimmie soon found a clever and well-educated young man.

Indeed, an ideal subordinate for any daringly conceived job. The more Jimmie studied him, the more he wondered how on earth he could have worked with Long Sam when he might have got hold of a young chap like this.

They all stayed talking in a restaurant for a long time after their meal was over. Before Hyslop and the girl went off on some further business Vivienne sent out for an early edition of the evening paper and found something about their latest exploit, which she read with much amusement.

"Why don't you come in with us, Jimmie?" she asked. "It's a paying game. Or work up a scheme for us all to go in on?"

Jimmie shook his head, smiling at the tribute to his organizing ability. "He flies higher than us, H. H.," remarked the girl to her partner.

"And works on his own?" queried the youth.

"Sometimes," agreed Rezaire.

"I mean"—Hyslop seemed to have reciprocated from his lower status in Jimmie's estimation—"I mean you wouldn't want a couple to work under you, what?"

"Well, at the moment I'm thinking of going in with some one big."

Vivienne's eyes narrowed. She looked at Jimmie seemed about to speak, remembered Hyslop, and didn't.

Rezaire passed the question and said: "I'll tell you more about it tomorrow, Viv, if you'll lunch with me."

"Right-ho. * * * Well, so long, old thing." She and Hyslop went off leaving Jimmie smoking thoughtfully at the table and smiling to himself. A resourceful girl that, clever as well as attractive. And the boy was all there too. He picked up the paper she had left and read of their handiwork again. Then his glance strayed to another item.

£25,000 PICTURE ROBBERY

Gems of Lord Stamping's Collection Stolen

At dawning this morning the historic mansion of * * * Jimmie read with interest. He found himself wondering whether this might not be a job of Neasden's gang. It seemed to bear out what the man had said, and he knew there were "syndicates" which undertook the theft of famous pictures on which unscrupulous collectors had a predatory eye. If so, it must be a paying game and he felt he had decided to accept. Then he saw lower down a statement that the theft was probably the work of a gang from America, to which country it was presumed the picture would ultimately travel, according to a preconceived plan. He left the picture robbery, attracted by a big headline adjoining: "ANOTHER R. A. F. FATALITY"

"H'm," thought Jimmie: "always killing themselves. I'd take a good bit to get me up in a plane. * * *"

He was about to fling the paper down when an interpolated heading, "Mysterious Loss. Spies in England?" caught his eye lower in the column. The word "mystery" was to Jimmie like a horn to a hound. He skipped the details of the accident—apparently a plane flying early that morning at Duxford had crashed in a field close by—and read the last paragraph:

"Some considerable mystery attaches to the accident, as the two officers were, it is understood, testing a new and highly technical apparatus for bomb-dropping invented by Prof. J. Murchison, the details of which have been kept secret by the air ministry. When the wreckage of the machine, however, was investigated this important apparatus was found to be missing. There were few spectators of the mishap, it being but shortly after dawn; but Mr. Hodgkins, a farm laborer, who was presumed to have arrived first on the scene, reports that while he was still one field away he saw a man dressed in gray also running toward the wreckage. He lost sight of him owing to an intervening hedge, and when he arrived this stranger was not there. Mr. Hodgkins thought little of it at the time, being concerned with extricating the dead men; but it is now believed possible that the unknown detached the apparatus (which may or may not have been damaged) and made off with it. It has been known for some time that certain individuals were desirous of obtaining information about this important secret. An attempt was made two nights ago to enter the hangar, and suspicious characters have been reported near the airdrome. The police are anxious to get in touch with any one who observed a man in gray, perhaps carrying a parcel or a strange portion of machinery about one foot square, who * * *"

At this point Jimmie became aware of a man tapping his sleeve. It was the waiter intimating that at 3:15 luncheon clients could be dispensed with. Jimmie yawned, threw the paper aside and left.

To Be Continued

Then he saw Vivienne. The shock of seeing her again almost made him stagger. Vivienne! He had often wondered during his prison days where she was. At her side was a fair-haired young man in a well-cut blue suit.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle pour 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known to one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Tells How Fat Men Can Lose Half Pound a Day

Here's a simple way to get rid of that corpulency and quickly feel in both body and mind the joy of living.

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the commencement—way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

It's the safe way, too—for every day you continue this easy method of being unwanted and unneeded flesh you'll gain in energy, vigor and endurance.

Nine times in ten obesity means inactivity—it means that your blood is starving for the six vital salts your internal organs need to keep you youthful, active, ambitious and keen in mind.

When you take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts every morning in a glass of hot or cold water you get those six vital salts which modern foods and cooking do not supply.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and vivacity you'd most forgotten had existed.

The urge for activity will be so marked that even at the end of a hard day's work you'll feel ready for any social activity or recreation—you can play as hard as you work.

And after two weeks your scales desk starts to go—you'll know it—feel it—see it—the scales will tell the story.

As one, once corpulent man remarked—"I feel so energetic that I want to get up with the lark and I'm just as lively as a cricket."

Kruschen Salts is not a purgative or a cathartic but a real system cleanser and for those who are victims of constipation or toxemia its daily use soon means blissful regularity.

Get an $5 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—last 4 weeks—at Bradley's Drug Store or any druggist in the world.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements, which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

FIFTY YEARS A BOAT CAPTAIN

Mrs. Blanche Leathers, sixty-six years old, for fifty years has been a Mississippi River steamboat captain. She was pictured with a bottle of "Madeira" which was presented to her by Jefferson Davis, former president of the Confederate States, when he made a trip many years ago on one of her boats. The bottle bears the inscription, "Blanche. I brought this to you. Don't open this until your first boy comes." The bottle has never been opened. Mrs. Leathers has never had a child.

MARION MAN LOSES LIQUOR CASE APPEAL

Upper Sandusky Judge Orders Payment of Fine by H. A. Lowery

H. A. Lowrey, West Center st., who was arrested here yesterday by local police for Upper Sandusky officials, today was expected to pay a fine of $500 and costs in Upper Sandusky courts on a charge of selling intoxicating liquors, on an offense said to have been committed on Jan. 7, 1928.

Lowrey was arrested here on the selling charge and was fined $500 on Jan. 7, 1928, in Upper Sandusky courts but the sentence was suspended pending appeal to higher courts. Recently the court of appeals upheld Judge Earl B. Carter, of the Upper Sandusky common pleas court. Judge Carter then rescinded his order suspending the fine and costs, and the fine was assessed.

Lowrey contested the case through Attorney Fred Warner. It was alleged that Lowrey, then living in Marion, sold liquor to a man in Wyandot county, who revealed Lowrey's name when arrested on a possession charge. Upper Sandusky officials then came to Marion to arrest Lowrey on the selling charge.

TAX BLANKS READY

Will Be Mailed Saturday to All Making Income Returns

Income tax blanks for 1929 will be released on Jan. 11, according to E. E. Stoughton, deputy collector of internal revenue for the eleventh Ohio district. Orders for the release on the blanks on that date have been received at the district offices in Columbus from the United States treasury department.

The blanks will be mailed Saturday to all persons who made income tax returns in 1928. They will be in the hands of taxpayers next Monday. The returns must be filed by March 15 and at least one-fourth of the tax paid on that date.

It is expected that a representative of the internal revenue department will be here before March 15 to aid local people in making out returns.
